As a visit to this department will perfectly satisfy any purchaser of the truth of our remarks, we ask but this favour.

CONSULTING ENGINEERS.
Messrs. SAMUEL and COURTNEY, 8, Spring-street.

BROKER.
JOSIAH MULLENS, 92, Pitt-street.

This Company is formed for the economical manufacture of ice, and its delivery on a large scale in Sydney and suburbs.

It is proposed to manufacture up to twenty-four tons per day during the season. This may appear a large amount, but there is no doubt that with an ever-increasing population, with large orders to be expected from shipping, and with extraordinary inducements offered to customers by the low price and superior quality of the ice, to be manufactured perfectly transparent and free from bubbles, an immense number of orders will be secured, and the demand for ice largely increased; and that, instead of being a luxury, only to be met with at the tables of the wealthy, it will become a common household commodity.

It is anticipated that the company's ice will be sold and delivered for about ½d per pound, as the result of a new invention—Raoul Pictet's Patent Sulphurous Anhydride Machinery, pronounced by experts to be the best in existence for the manufacture of ice.

The chemical employed (Sulphurous Anhydride, SO2) is the only known volatile agent suitable for refrigerating purposes that is incombustible, inexplosive, and inexpensive. It has not only no deleterious effect on metals, but answers the purpose of a lubricant, and will work at a low pressure, varying from 20lb. to 40lb. per square inch above atmospheric pressure in the compression pump, and at a pressure very little below the atmosphere in the refrigerator. The remarkable properties of this chemical render the machine perfect, simple, and economical in working. Beyond the first charge of acid the machine requires no chemicals worthy of consideration. The first charge never gets destroyed by the use of lubricants, and the valves and stuffing boxes are all so skilfully designed and constructed that any leakage of acid is almost impossible at the low pressure employed. In these essential points this machine differs from all others in use. Though, theoretically, both ether and ammonia give good results, nevertheless, in practical working, difficulty and failure are experienced. In the case of the former, on account of its low vapour tension, atmospheric air finds its way into the refrigerator, thus destroying the efficiency of the plant; moreover, ether easily becomes decomposed and useless by the use of lubricants. The most serious objections to ether are its high cost and extreme inflammability. Ammonia is used in two systems; in both of these the pressure employed is very high, and the danger and leakage of vapour at the joints considerable. The amount of water used for condensing is also very large, and in the one class of machine in which a compression pump is used, the necessity of keeping the glands tight enough to retain in any degree the ammonia vapour, which is exceedingly penetrating and more difficult to retain than steam, absorbs a large amount of power, and this entails a proportionate loss of fuel.

A large number of the Pictet machines have already been fitted up at various places (see lists and testimonials attached) and subjected to rigid practical tests and the experience of daily working, with the greatest possible success. Amongst the larger of these may be mentioned one at Paris; one at New York; one at Southport, England; one at Liverpool, England; each turning out 24 tons of transparent block ice per day; there is also a large machine at work in Cairo, Egypt, besides a great number on the continent of Europe and North and South America. The Pictet Company are at present putting up a 24-ton machine in London and another at Manchester.

The promoter, Mr. Samuel, had this machinery brought under his notice in England, and was so struck with its efficiency that at considerable expense he visited several existing works; the undoubted success of all these works so convinced him of the value of the patent that he entered into negotiations for the sole right for Australia. Unfortunately, through the death of the owner of the patent rights for the world, the arrangements made have fallen through. Mr. Samuel, however, has been in communication with the patentees, who have agreed to supply him with the necessary plant on more favourable terms. Mr. Samuel has agreed to take all risk of the floating of the company, and all deposits will be returned in full should the Company not float. In return for this risk and the work of getting out specifications and arranging for inspection and importation of machinery, he will receive 1500 fully paid shares.

The machinery will be under the patentees' written guarantee to make the amount of ice set forth.

The estimates of cost of machinery, land, and buildings, &c., are as under:—

Plant, complete, erected	£8,500
Land, freehold	6,500
Buildings	4,000
Waggons and horses	1,300
Promoter, in fully paid-up shares	1,500
Working capital and contingencies	3,000
		25,000 0 0

It is proposed to call up only 15s. per share, and to issue debentures for £8000, secured on the property.

The estimated profit on a sale of 24 tons per diem for 150 days in the year is as under:—

24 tons of ice at ½d per pound		£112 0 0
Cost of manufacture—
Wages (three shifts)	£7 10 0
Coal, 42s; water, 30s	3 12 0
Stores, acid, &c.	2 0 0
Cost of distribution—
16 tons in 14lb. blocks	32 0 0
8 tons in large quantities	5 2 0
		50 4 0
Gross profit per diem		£61 16 0
150 days at £61 16s	£9,270
Less depreciation	£1000
Staff	1000
	2,000
		£7,270 0 0

Leaving an annual profit of £7,270, deducting £480 for interest, at 6 per cent. on the debenture capital, a return of 25 per cent. on £17,000.

It is not expected that so large a sale would be achieved at once, but an out-turn and sale of 12 tons per day is estimated to give a return of £2700 nett, which would pay a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent., leaving a good margin.

These calculations do not take into account any profit on sales to shipping during the winter months.

The estimates have been very carefully made, and, it is believed, with a large margin throughout for contingencies.

SHOULD the DEMAND EXCEED the SUPPLY at ANY TIME SHAREHOLDERS WILL RECEIVE the FIRST CONSIDERATION in the DELIVERY of ICE.

Application must be made to the Broker of the Company in the annexed form, and the Share List will be closed as soon as a sufficient number are taken up.

Should the Company not be formed all deposits will be returned in full.

"I have the pleasure of hereby declaring that the ice machine on your system for producing 200 kilos. an hour has worked ever since it was started to my entire satisfaction, and produces more than the quantity for which it was sold.

"The apparatus for producing transparent ice, which has been added to the machine, gives very good results. The ice is of beautiful quality, transparent, and crystalline.

"Two men are sufficient for the service of the machine and for the extraction of the ice.

"The price of production per ton of ice is in absolute conformity with the particulars given by you when the machine was ordered.

NEWS BY THE ENGLISH MAIL, VIA SUEZ.

The English mails brought by the R.M.S. Mirzapore were received overland from Melbourne, and delivered from the General Post Office, yesterday morning. The latest London date is January 25.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

LONDON, JAN. 25.

The Egyptian crisis has afforded us another surprise. The selection of Gordon Pasha to "report upon the military situation in the Soudan" is a much more important event than, perhaps, appears upon the surface. It is not only calling in the physician at the eleventh hour, but it may mean a very important departure in the Egyptian policy of this country. No part of the romantic career of "Chinese" Gordon is more remarkable than his dealings with the Soudanese, between the years 1874 and 1879. He, Sir Samuel Baker, and Lieutenant-Colonel Stewart are the three great authorities upon all questions relating to the Soudan, and it is a cardinal point with the former that the troubles which have now overtaken the Khedive in these regions have arisen entirely out of the maladministration of the Turks and Circassians in Egyptian employment, and not out of any inherent faults of the tribes themselves. The published opinions of Gordon Pasha have clearly shown that he is not in accord with the policy of the English Government in their proposed withdrawal from Khartoum. The selection, therefore, of such a man, with the vast power and authority which have been granted to him, virtually amounts to a sacrifice on the part of the English Cabinet, and to an admission on their part of the necessity of once more reversing their Soudanese policy. Like Sir Samuel Baker, Gordon Pasha holds that Khartoum ought to be defended. He is even in favour of retaining Sennaar; but, of course, Kordofan and Darfur have, as he says, not only abandoned themselves, but were always useless and costly appendages of the Egyptian Crown.

The most singular feature in this latest arrangement consists in the circumstance that Gordon Pasha goes forth upon his mission almost single-handed. He is accompanied, indeed, by Lieutenant-Colonel Stewart, an old traveller in the Soudan, but otherwise he is absolutely alone. It was a primary condition of his acceptance of this task that he should be free from the control of the Egyptian Government, and virtually be entrusted with carte blanche. Last week he started for Brussels in order to make final arrangements with the King of the Belgians for taking charge of the international association's expedition to the Congo. At the last moment the British Government begged King Leopold to defer the employment of Gordon Pasha's services for such a task, and within 24 hours after the monarch had signified his assent, Gordon Pasha was on his way to Egypt. It was not until last Saturday morning that the English public realised the fact that he had already started by the Brindisi mail. He proceeded straight to Suez, and at the present time has arrived at Cairo. It was his intention to avoid the Egyptian capital, and to go straight from Suez to Suakim. The road from Suakim to the Soudan is blocked by rebellious tribes, the chief of whom are the Bisharins. Gordon Pasha is an old friend of the leaders of this tribe, and a striking instance of the courage—one might almost say the effrontery—of this able explorer, is the circumstance that he intended to make himself known to the Bisharins immediately he arrived at Suakim, and ask them to escort him to Khartoum.

The known qualities of Gordon Pasha for honesty, the trust which the Soudanese always placed in him, the severity with which in times past he visited the wrongdoings of Egyptian officials, his fearlessness, his tact, and, above all, his wonderful good luck, are the chief elements which must bring him through the task which he has now undertaken. It seems astounding that the English Government should not, according to appearances, have prepared to follow up such a mission with the support of a large army. This is the more remarkable because of the fate of Khartoum, and the dissatisfaction which is arising on all hands against the proposed withdrawal from that place. The present plans of the Government would seem to be the retention of Egypt only as far as Wadi Halfa and the Red Sea ports, leaving the Eastern as well as the Western Soudan to lawlessness and chaos. There are, however, in Khartoum no fewer than 25,000 non-Arab inhabitants, whose lives would thus be imperilled, and their march, with the limited means at present in hand, through the deserts which intervene between them and Egypt would occupy a twelvemonth. The garrison is over 6000 strong, but only 4000 are trustworthy.

It is a remarkable incident of the past week that telegraphic communication, not only with Khartoum, but with Sennaar, which is further south, has been restored, and with it comes a denial of the very definite statement that prevailed last week as to the assembling of the Mahdi's forces on the Blue and White Nile. That the surrounding tribes are in revolt and are preparing to advance upon Khartoum is undeniable, but, up to the time of writing, we have no definite information as to the whereabouts of the Mahdi, or the presence of any large organised force on the Red Sea border.

This week the Cabinet has discussed the proposed new boundary line for the Transvaal State, and according to common report there seems no possibility of the delegates and Lord Derby coming to a satisfactory solution. If there be truth in this report we may regard the Boer negotiations as virtually ended, and the Transvaal authorities will then fall back upon the line of the Pretoria Convention. Such a proceeding would undoubtedly tend to rehabilitate Lord Derby in the eyes of the many who look upon his colonial policy with disfavour by reason of his want of sympathy with the enterprises of Englishmen. The Boers will shortly visit Holland, where a tremendous reception is being prepared for them. They will leave this country in a special steamer lent for the purpose by one of the Dutch trading companies, and the King of the Netherlands will take part in their march of triumph through the Low Countries. Such a demonstration will greatly assist them in their designs for their floating of a new loan.

This week's papers have thrown some light upon the recent peace negotiations between France and Madagascar. The Hova Government have proposed very large concessions, including a recognition of a French protectorate over the north of the island. The French Commissioner, however, finding the Malagasies disposed for peace, demanded the following exorbitant conditions:—A recognition by the Hovas of the general right of France over all Madagascar; the interdiction of the Hovas from ever putting themselves under any other protectorate but that of France. Lord Granville, it seems, has expressed his sorrow to the Malagasies for their losses and ruin, but tells them that they must "grin and bear it," as the Government can do nothing for them. By this policy of inaction all English interests in the island, representing nearly half a million of money, will be left to take care of themselves. The impression prevails that France intends to establish a large naval arsenal at Diego Suarez, on the north-east coast. The only further news from the island relates to the continued shelling of the villages on the coast by French gunboats—an immoral and cowardly proceeding.

There is very little of interest in the work of the coming session. A very long debate is expected upon the address, and the Tory party will do all they can to force a general election this year by traversing the foreign policy of the Government and criticising the absence of a redistribution bill, for it is quite clear that the Cabinet will not attempt to deal with the latter point in this session. The Government have also given a plain intimation that they will not go to the country for any trifling disaster, and we may take it for certain that nothing short of a defeat on the Franchise Bill will bring about that result.

A statement which appeared in the Court Circular some day or two ago with reference to the state of the Queen's health has given rise to a good deal of gossip, and caused some unnecessary alarm in certain quarters. As a matter of fact, although the Queen is certainly showing signs of physical weakness, yet her condition is not such as to cause any anxiety. The announcement appeared in the Court Circular just before the opening of Parliament, in order to prepare the public mind for the notice which followed shortly after, that her Majesty would not open Parliament in person. It may be mentioned that the Queen never has opened Parliament for Mr. Gladstone.

Death has removed one very prominent name from the ranks of the peerage. The Marquis of Hertford [illegible] with an accident while out hunting, was taken home unconscious, and he is now reported to be sinking. A sadder case is that of the young Earl Grosvenor, heir apparent to the princely house of Westminster. A slight cold, caught while following a local pack of harriers, led to congestion of the lungs, and death ensued so rapidly that there was scarcely time for the young earl's relatives to be summoned from London to his bedside. During a moment of consciousness he asked to see his three little children, but before they could be fetched from the nursery to their father's bedside he had relapsed into a state of delirium from which he never recovered. He was only 30 years of age. He was not a man who made any mark in public life, but he had strongly developed mechanical tastes. He leaves a son behind him, Viscount Belgrave, who now becomes heir apparent to the dukedom of Westminster with its rent roll of over a million sterling.

Mr. Barnum's white elephant is most decidedly what the little street boys would call a "sell." The creature can only be called "white" on the lucus a non lucendo principle, and if it be a fact, as confidently asserted by Mr. Barnum's agent, that the sum of £10,000 was paid down for Toong Taloung, then Phineas T. Barnum affords a striking illustration of the truth of the saying that certain individuals and their money are soon parted. Mr. Sanderson, the Superintendent of the Government Elephant-Catching Department in Bengal, who is at the present moment in England, says that an elephant in every single respect similar to Toong Taloung can be purchased any day at Dacca for about a couple of hundred pounds. The only white about this creature consists of a few whitey streaks about the toes, and dashes or splashes of pink upon the trunk and neck. It is a subject of dispute amongst zoologists and medical men whether these patches are natural or whether they are caused by some disease. Mr. Barnum's latest purchase appeared before us in the two-fold capacity of white and sacred, but its claims to neither adjective will hold water. Its lack of whiteness is manifest to the naked eye, and its claim to sacredness, and its being an object of worship by the Buddhists, is being loudly ridiculed. A number of Eastern travellers have pointed out that the Bhuddists do not worship animals, and that, so far from there being anything very extraordinary in the fact of Bhudda having once assumed the form of an elephant, the Bhuddist legends state that he assumed the form of every animal, from an ant to an elephant, and that inasmuch as the Bhuddists do not worship ants, neither do they worship elephants. Perhaps, however, the greatest blow of all comes from an old traveller in Burmah and Siam, who states that there are no such things as white elephants in existence, and that the so-called white elephants of the Kings of Burmah and Siam are simply ordinary elephants with a few white streaks upon their bodies, which are regarded as "lucky" spots by the natives. One curious circumstance about Toong Taloung is, that when first placed on view at the elephant house in the Zoological Gardens last Saturday, he no sooner found himself surrounded by a crowd of visitors than he made several efforts to stand on his head, greatly to the discomfiture of his keeper.

A more successful Yankee speculation is the Mackay-Bennett cable between England and the United States, which is expected to be completed about the middle of the present year. This gigantic undertaking has been promoted almost entirely by Mr. J. W. Mackay, the American millionaire, and Mr. Gordon Bennett, of the New York Herald. These gentlemen do not intend to amalgamate with any of the existing lines. It is stated that Mr. Gordon Bennett contemplates starting a daily paper in London, which is to be a reproduction of the New York Herald, and will be supplied with news by means of this cable, which is to be allocated to Mr. Bennett's use two or three hours a day. The experiment, if it is really in contemplation, would be rather a risky one, for the tone of transatlantic journalism certainly would not suit the taste of English readers.

The half-yearly reports of the various metropolitan Joint Stock Banks, which have nearly all been issued since the commencement of the year, have been very satisfactory. In spite of the dulness of trade and the lower value of money during the past six months, all the banks have maintained their dividends, and in one or two cases have slightly raised them. There has been a great falling off in speculation; but this has had one good result in the comparative fewness of bad debts. The average bank rate for the latter half of the year has been £3 8s. 11d. per cent., or 5s. 4d. per cent. less than the average of the previous half-year, and for a great part of the time the market rate has been below the bank rate. The bank rate now stands at 3 per cent. as compared with 5 per cent. a year ago.

A correspondent, writing to the papers, gives a very sad account of the condition of the community of Shakers who have taken up their abode in the New Forest. The "family" is about 60 in number, of whom two-thirds are women. A cardinal article of their faith forbids them to work for hire, and consequently they live on the very margin of starvation. Many times the entire "family" of 60 members goes for days together without food. Their credit among the small shopkeepers of the neighbourhood has long been exhausted, and they are mainly dependent on the casual charity of visitors and a few friends. Nevertheless, there is no trace of repining or bitterness amongst them, and they look forward with supreme confidence to a time when happiness and plenty shall reign supreme in a Shaker family which is to possess the whole regenerated universe.

The frozen meat trade has been rather dull during the past fortnight, owing to a large supply of Scotch mutton coming into the market. The New Zealand qualities, however, still maintain their price of from 5½d. to 6d., and Australian 4½d. to 5d. The worst sorts for the English market are those with a merino strain in them. An important letter in the Live Stock Journal by Mr. Stimpson, a well-known salesman, confirms the opinion previously expressed in this correspondence as to the unsuitableness of pure merino sheep for the English market. While writing upon this subject I may mention that the London market alone is now capable of absorbing about 4000 carcases a week.

A landscape has been purchased by the trustees of the Sydney National Gallery. It is the work of Carl Heffner, a Bavarian artist, well known on the Continent.

Our files are to the 25th January, from which the following extracts are taken:—

IRELAND.

The Dublin correspondent of the Times writes:—"The revival of agitation, though only partial and limited, is followed, as it has ever been, by a revival of outrage. One of the latest instances is of a serious character. The stationmaster on the Limerick and Kerry Railway at Ballingrane Junction, named Patrick Clancy, was fired at on Friday (Jan. 18), night, and severely wounded. About 9 o'clock he walked out on the platform, as usual as the train from Tralee to Limerick was approaching, when the contents of a gun loaded with shot were discharged full in his face. His head and face are stated to be riddled with the discharge and his tongue has been injured. The station was lighted up, so that it was easy in the darkness of the night to recognise any person, and the assassin concealed himself in a shrubbery opposite the house. In the confusion which followed the outrage and the arrival of the train, which intercepted a view of him, the miscreant was able to effect his escape. Mr. Clancy is in a critical condition, but hopes are entertained of his recovery."

A young man, named Murphy, a respectable farmer's son, was found dead on January 20, on the road near Inchigeelagh, about eight miles from Macroom. He was lying in a pool of blood, and had several wounds. He is supposed to have been murdered. The authorities have made no arrest.

A MOCK FUNERAL OF O'DONNELL.

A Londonderry correspondent telegraphs to the Times:—An extraordinary scene is reported as having occurred at Derrybeg, County Donegal. An immense crowd of the peasantry assembled, and, after assisting at a mass which was offered up for the repose of the soul of Patrick O'Donnell, who was hanged at Newgate for the murder of Carey, they proceeded with a coffin to the graveyard, where it was deposited in the family burying ground. The people all knelt round the grave in prayer. An immortelle rested on the coffin, on the plate of which was inscribed "Sacred to the memory of Patrick O'Donnell, executed in London, December 17, 1883." A sum of £40 was subscribed for the purpose of erecting a monument. Resolutions were passed by the people thanking their American friends for their assistance during O'Donnell's trial; and also thanking Victor Hugo for his advocacy of the murderer's cause.

AUSTRALIAN CRICKET.

The Home News says:—"A close analysis of the merits of Australian cricket must result in the admission of its superiority over ours. This is more particularly noticeable in bowling. Spofforth and Palmer have justly been styled the best bowlers that ever held a ball. They bowl, so to speak, with their brains; their method is scientific to an extent hardly known amongst us. Their science lies mainly in their infinite variety; the batter never knows what kind of ball to expect. Spofforth changes his pace without betraying it until the ball is delivered, and Palmer deceives a batsman in the same way. Other excellent bowlers, only second in merit to the above named, display the same kind of skill. In fielding the Australians have been the admiration of every English field on which they have played. This is due, no doubt, to the constant practice already adverted to; but their marvellous skill in catching came, it is said, from the size of their hands, and still more the strength of their eyes. The level and uniform excellence of the batting was another of the Australians' merits; their style was not first-rate, perhaps, but it was tremendously effective. The approaching visit of the Australians causes much discussion in cricketing circles, and the patrons of the noble game are doubting on which side victory will lie in the coming campaign. It is so pretty generally anticipated that the Australians will maintain their ascendency that astrologists are already trying to explain the colonists' success."

THE VIENNA MURDERS.

Before being delivered up to justice, Hugo Schenk confessed to the police that he had planned five murders for last week, which were to provide him with 70,000 florins. With this sum he intended to escape to America with Emily Hoschmann. Two of his intended victims are daughters of respectable families. One is a servant to the Baroness Malfatti, whose chambermaid he had induced to steal pearls worth 20,000 florins, which the Imperial family had presented to Dr. Malfatti for attending Napoleon's son, the Duke of Reichstadt, during his last illness. This maid, who lived in the family for 12 years, was so thoroughly trusted that the pearls were not missed until Schenk's arrest gave the cue to the robbery. She had prepared everything for Schenk and his accomplice's reception in the house on the very night he was arrested. Schenk said to her he would give all the inmates, herself included, a dose of morphia; but he has confessed that his real intention was to murder them all. If he had not been arrested on the 10th, this crime would have been added to others. The Baroness Malfatti had about 10,000 florins' worth of plate and jewels, besides much cash, in the house, a solitary villa in an outlying suburb. She is a most generous old lady, who founded and keeps up an asylum for old women. Her pearls were pawned in Linz. The maid's deposition confirmed Schenk's confession.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Dublin correspondent of the Times sends the following significant paragraph:—"An indignation meeting is to be held in Limerick to denounce the conduct of the landlords who have in that district refused sites for labourers' dwellings. It is a remarkable fact that nearly all the landlords who have given their consent are English, or non-resident, or both."

Mrs. Langtry, in spite of certain unfavourable press criticisms, continues to conduct a triumphant campaign in the "States." One of her numerous admirers recently gave her a ring set with a diamond valued at 1000 guineas, and such a profusion of gems has been lavished on her that by the time she crosses the Pacific she will have a greater variety of jewels than any uncrowned woman in the world.

The official correspondence respecting the allowances granted to Arabi and the other Egyptian exiles in Ceylon has been published. Lord Granville has consented that an additional £500 should be allowed to the exiles, out of which the allowance to Arabi should be increased from £30 15s. to £55 a month. The remainder of the sum is proposed to be expended on improved house accommodation, according to the discretion of the Government of Ceylon. To this the Colonial Office and the Egyptian Government have given their assent. Madame Arabi expresses her desire not to leave Egypt.

Intelligence received from St. Petersburg says that the police are most carefully examining the basements of all the houses which are situated in the vicinity of the Anitchkoff Palace, as well as all the narrow alleys in the neighbourhood. The inhabitants of St. Petersburg are subjected to the most stringent control.

The Russian fleet in the Mediterranean is to be reinforced during the ensuing spring by several ironclad frigates, among them being the newly constructed Dmetry and Donskoi.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

SIXTH DAY—MONDAY.

The session of the General Assembly was resumed in St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street, at 7 o'clock in the evening. There was a good attendance of visitors, and the moderator (Rev. J. S. Laing) presided.

Rev. GEORGE M'INNES, B.D., read the report of the committee on publications, from which the following portions have been extracted:—Your committee has during the year issued three publications. 1. "The Proceedings of the General Assembly of 1883." This volume contains 130 pages; that of 1881 contains 95 pages; and that of 1879 contains 44 pages. The 1883 volume is three times the size of the 1879 volume. Not only has the business of the assembly grown very much, but a more complete record of it has been given in 1883 than in any previous year. In the 1883 volume, overtures, references, petitions, dissents, &c., have for the first time been included in the Annual Blue Book. The joint-editors, the Revs. J. S. Laing and J. M. Ross deserve great credit for their careful and accurate work. 2. The sermon preached before the assembly of 1883 by the retiring moderator, the Rev. J. Cosh, M.A., was published by command. 3. The "Messenger for the Children" has been issued regularly every month. Among the contents have been letters from our missionary in the New Hebrides, the Rev. W. H. Murray, M.A., and valuable papers on the history of the New Hebrides Mission by the Rev. Dr. Steel, on Trees and Plants of the Bible by the Rev. R. Collie, F.L.S., and on the history of the Early Church by Mr. John Fraser, B.A. Scriptural enigmas and questions have been regularly given, and have been answered by 127 young people. The questions have been framed so as to necessitate the diligent searching of the Scriptures, and many of the answers gave evidence of faithful study. For the best prizes there have been given 25 senior prizes, 14 junior prizes, 25 certificates of honour, and 35 certificates of merit. Of these some have gone to other colonies. It is but due to the Rev. D. Shearer, M.A., of Perth, West Australia, to mention that his Sabbath school has gained five senior prizes, four junior prizes, and two certificates of honour. Your committee last year for the first time printed for the use of members all papers laid before the assembly, and, daily, a roll of business and the minutes of the previous day's sederunts. The expense was inconsiderable, as the appendix of the Blue Book, containing reports, &c., was afterwards printed from the same types. The printing of the assembly papers gave so much satisfaction, and was so helpful for the intelligent and rapid transaction of business that the papers have been printed this year also, with the exception of the daily minutes. Your committee has carefully examined "Church Praise," and has much satisfaction in expressing its high approval of it, and recommends the assembly to sanction the use of "Church Praise" in public worship and in Sabbath-schools. One advantage attending its use will be that one hymnal will be found in both church and school. The emblematic Church device, ordered by last assembly, has been cut in London, and is now in use. The want of a small working capital hampers your committee very much, hinders its usefulness, and prevents it from providing uniform sets of Church books. Your committee suggests that it should be authorised to publish transference certificates for sale to sessions. On the general account your committee has to report a credit balance of £12 7s. 6d., and on the "Messenger" account a debit balance of £23 11s. 9d. This debit balance has already been accounted for, and will soon, it is hoped, be exchanged for a credit balance.

On the motion of the Rev. G. MACINNES, a deliverance was passed adopting all the recommendations of the committee on publications, with the exception of that relating to the new hymnal, "Church Praise." It was decided to defer until Wednesday the consideration of the recommendation of the committee in favour of the adoption of the new hymnal.

The assembly was then adjourned until Tuesday morning, at half-past 10 o'clock.

The committee on bills met at 10 o'clock p.m., and arranged the business for Tuesday, as follows:—10.30, report of church and manse committee, overtures re Cowra and Orange, reference re Dr. Boz's resignation, course of instruction in Public schools, report on statistics, report of committee on temporary reserve fund, intercourse with other churches and federation; 12 noon, aged and infirm ministers' fund, petition from Glen Innes for permission to sell land, reports of committees on presbytery records; 6.30 p.m., committee on superior boarding schools, overture re deficit in assembly expenses, committee on religion and morals (motion re prayer for rain, petition re opium traffic), committee on temperance.

SERVICE OF SONG.

A special service of song was held in St. Stephen's Presbyterian Church, Phillip-street, last evening, the object of the promoters of the service—the psalmody committee of the General Assembly—being to give illustrations of the new hymn book, "Church Praise," which it is proposed to introduce into the Presbyterian churches of New South Wales. "Church Praise" is based upon "Psalms and Hymns for Divine Worship," which is at present in use; but the changes made have been so great, and the reconstruction of the book has been so complete, that it was deemed by the compilers necessary to give it a new title. That of "Church Praise" has been adopted. The book has by the synod of the Presbyterian Church of England been authorised for use in the churches of that denomination. The rendering of last night's service was committed to the United Presbyterian choirs who were under the conductorship of Mr. A. Bowen. The responsible duties of organist were performed by Mr. Sydney Moss, L.C.M., who presided with his customary skill. A number of selections were given from the new hymnal, comprising "Ein Feste Burg," a tune which was sung in Germany with much spirit during the Luther celebration; "Frankfort" (Mendelssohn), "Propior Deo" (Arthur Sullivan), "Passion Chorale" (Hans L. Hassler), "St. Ann's," second tune (arranged by Arthur Sullivan), "St. Sylvester" (Rev. J. B. Dykes, Mus. Doc.), and "St. Gertrude" (Arthur Sullivan). In addition to selections from the new hymn book, the following favourite compositions were rendered:—"Oh, Rest in the Lord," by Mrs. Innes; "Angels ever bright and fair," by Miss Thomson; "Nazareth," by Mr. Thomson; and "Resignation," by Mrs. Innes. The following portions of the oratorio "The Messiah" were also performed: Pastoral Symphony, organ solo by Mr. Moss; recitatives, "There were shepherds abiding in the fields," "And lo! the angel of the Lord," "And the angel said unto them," "And suddenly there was with the angel," by Miss Thomson; the choruses, "Glory to God" and "Hallelujah" by the united choirs. During the evening a collection was taken up in aid of the psalmody committee's fund, and the sum of £11 6s. 7d. was contributed. At the close of the service a vote of thanks was passed to all who had taken part in it.

SYDNEY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

The 108th quarterly meeting of the Sydney Municipal Council was held at the Town Hall yesterday. The Mayor occupied the chair, and Aldermen Harris, J. Young, Dean, Palmer, Hart, Playfair, J. D. Young, Fowler, Taylor, Lees, O'Connor, Poole, Withers, Burdekin, Macmahon, Carter, Beare, Moore, Chapman, Jones, Kippax, and Parker were present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were presented—by Alderman Taylor for the removal of a nuisance arising from drains in Sussex-street; by Alderman Macmahon, for the extension of a water main in a new lane off Surry-street; by Alderman Beare, for an extension of Pring-street; and by Alderman Carter, for an improvement of the water supply in Little Buckingham-street, and against the proposed elevation of Castlereagh-lane.

APPOINTMENT.

The MAYOR reported that he had appointed Mr. N. D. Clarke temporarily to the position of a clerk in the city surveyor's department.

WASTE OF WATER.

Alderman CHAPMAN said he hoped steps would be taken to prevent the waste of fresh water. He complained that the Government were using it for watering their tramways, and when their officials were spoken to about it they asserted that it was paid for, and that they would do what they liked with regard to it. He maintained that such a proceeding should be prevented, because salt water would answer every purpose the Government had in view.

The MAYOR said that after the last meeting of the aldermen he had instructed Mr. Robertson and his subordinates to visit all gardens and schools and other institutions where water might be wasted, and they had found only two places where waste occurred. The men were at present visiting the hotels of the city, and also were serving notices on the citizens requesting them to exercise economy in the consumption of water.

INDECENCY AT THE PUBLIC BATHS.

Alderman O'CONNOR complained that persons who resorted to the Woolloomooloo baths exposed themselves publicly.

The MAYOR said that from personal experience he could confirm Alderman O'Connor's statement, and that the matter should be attended to.

Alderman O'CONNOR suggested that they should pass a by-law compelling bathers to wear proper costumes.

FINANCE.

It was moved,—"That the report of the Finance Committee, recommending the payment of sundry accounts, be adopted."

The motion was agreed to. The accounts were for the following purposes:—City works, £24,549 5s. 7d.; water works, £2169 15s. 8d.; sewerage works, £331 16s. 11d.; cattle saleyards, £60 5s. 2d.; Town-hall loan fund, £3000; total, £30,111 3s. 4d.

THE CITY ENGINEER'S DEPARTMENT.

Alderman J. D. YOUNG moved,—"That the resolution of Council of 12th February, 1884, approving of the report of the special committee of the whole Council appointed to inquire into the working of the City Engineer's Department be, and the same is hereby rescinded." He said that in ordinary circumstances he would like this matter to drop. He had stated that the department was rotten, but he did not desire to cast any reflection on the head of it, except to say that he had been negligent and too lenient with his subordinates. The inquiry into the working of the department substantiated the charges he had made against it, but the verdict of the Council had branded him as a public liar.

Aldermen O'CONNOR, PLAYFAIR, CARTER, and MACMAHON urged Alderman Young to withdraw the motion, and they urged earnestly that he might do so, seeing that he had performed his duty courageously, and that none of the aldermen desired that he should be stigmatised as a liar.

Alderman YOUNG declined to withdraw the motion, and it was thereupon put, and negatived by 18 votes to 3, the minority consisting of Aldermen J. D. Young, Hart, and O'Connor.

Alderman CHAPMAN moved,—"That Alderman William Kippax be appointed to represent the Municipal Council of the city of Sydney on the Fire Brigade Board."

The motion was agreed to.

THE SEWERAGE RESERVE.

The motion was agreed to.

SEWAGE AT RUSHCUTTER BAY.

Alderman BEARE moved,—"That this council having diverted all drainage and sewage from the city falling into Rushcutter Bay Creek into the Government sewer, the Paddington and Woollahra councils be called upon to do the same with their sewage, so as to suppress the unhealthy exhalations arising from the creek at Bentley's Bridge, better known as Rushcutter Bay Bridge."

The motion was agreed to.

THE CONSUMPTION OF WATER.

Alderman MACMAHON moved,—"That notices be served upon the occupants of all premises in the city and suburbs supplied with water, directing attention to the present diminished supply at Botany, and to the necessity of economising the consumption of water, and for using every precaution against unnecessary waste."

The motion was agreed to.

WAITING ROOM FOR LUMPERS.

Alderman O'CONNOR moved,—"That this council grant the temporary use of a portion of the land in Kent-street North—at present vested in this council by the Government,—for the purpose of erecting a waiting and reading room for the use of the labouring men employed along the wharfs; and that the land be entrusted to the care of the Lumpers' Association."

The motion was ruled out of order, inasmuch as it had not been brought up in regular form from committee.

ELECTRIC LIGHT AT RAILWAY STATION.

Alderman HARRIS moved,—"That application be made to the Minister for Works to extend the electric light to the entrance to the Railway Station from George-street."

The motion was agreed to.

WATER TROUGHS AT SALE YARDS.

Alderman TAYLOR moved,—"That the offer of Messrs. Daly Bros. to supply and fix a clock in the tower, Town Hall, in accordance with specification, and subject to proper security and guarantee being provided, at a cost of £1375, be accepted."

The motion was agreed to by 15 votes to 2, the minority being Aldermen Dean and Moore.

MARKET WHARF RATES.

Alderman PALMER moved,—"That the report of the finance committee, recommending that the rates from the Market Wharf properties be collected from the 1st January, 1883, be adopted."

The motion was agreed to.

WATER RATES.

Alderman CHAPMAN moved,—"That the several rates hereunder set forth be made and levied upon properties assessed in the undermentioned localities, to cover the expenses incurred in watering the streets during the year 1883, viz.:—Argyle-street, George-street to Kent-street, 4d. in the £; Bridge-street, George-street to Pitt-street, 2d.; Bathurst-street, George-street to Elizabeth-street, 3d.; Barrack-street, George-street to Clarence-street, 3d.; College-street, Oxford-street to William-street, 3d.; Circular Quay, front of Custom House, 3d.; Castlereagh-street, King-street to Hunter-street, 2d.; Castlereagh-street, Devonshire-street to Cleveland-street, 4d.; Crown-street, Oxford-street to Cleveland-street, 3d.; Devonshire-street, George-street to Elizabeth-street, 3d.; Darlinghurst-road, Burton-street to William-street, 4d.; Erskine-street, from York-street to the water, 4d.; Fort-street, George-street to Argyle-place, 3d.; George-street, A. The motion was agreed to.

PROPOSED CLOSING OF STREET.

Alderman FOWLER moved,—"That, in accordance with the recommendation of the finance committee, this council does not offer any objection to the closing of a portion of Chowne-street, not used as a public way, permission for such closing being now sought from the Government by the Colonial Sugar Refining Company."

It was explained that the portion of street in question was kerbed and guttered, and was laid with a water main, and the council considered they would be unwise in sanctioning the closing of it.

The motion was therefore negatived.

DEVIATION FROM IMPROVEMENT ACT.

Alderman HART moved,—"That, in accordance with the Sydney Improvement Act, this council approves of the proposed deviations from the requirements of the Act in the construction of buildings belonging to the undermentioned parties:—Batt, Rodd, and Purves—construction of areas, 105, Pitt-street; Bolster and Justelius—bathrooms in back balcony, Foveaux-street; Brush, Son, and Co.—erection of awnings at premises, Lamb, Fairfax, and Co.'s, Hunter-street; G. Alderman HARRIS moved,—"That the sewer along the Darling Harbour railway, recently damaged by explosion of gas, be repaired at a cost of £250."

Alderman KIPPAX moved,—"That additional stoneware pipes be laid for the drainage of Taylor-street, Taylor-lane, and Chisholm and Dowling streets, at a cost of £204."

MECHANICAL ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The mechanical engineer presented the following quarterly report:—"I have the honour to forward quarterly report to date, as to the water supply and machinery connected therewith. The supply has been met by the almost continuous use of two engines, and with but comparatively very few stoppages. Since last report of December 9, 1883, the year having terminated, I beg to forward for your information the quantity as used during the year ended and the two immediate preceding ones:—Year 1881, 1281 million gallons; year 1882, 1364 million gallons; year 1883, 1729 million gallons; this showing an increase of over one million gallons per day in past year. The consumption during the middle of December was most excessive, necessitating the continuous use of two engines at increased speed to meet the then demand, and but barely successful in doing so; the quantity delivered at that time was over 36 million gallons per week; the lowest of any week in the quarter was 33·25 million gallons. The average weekly consumption of past quarter is as follows:—Quarter March 9, 1884, 34·3 m.g.; quarter December 9, 1883, 30·3 m.g.; quarter March 9, 1883, 28·0 m.g. I have nothing special to report as to machinery, that having received only the ordinary incidental repairs. The boilers have had renewals of several plates wherever found necessary. The figures as above shown will at once explain the great increase of supply having made a corresponding exhaustion of our water storage; and, coupled with the fact of not any water having passed away as surplus for now nearly five years, will most necessarily test what storage may remain now."

HEALTH OFFICER'S REPORT.

The City Health Officer presented the following quarterly report:—"I have the honour to submit the quarterly report ending February 29th. The number of births registered during the past quarter was:—In December, 158 males, 138 females—total 296; in January, 187 males, 193 females—total, 380; in February, 167 males, 163 females—total 330; making a total of 1006. During the same period the deaths recorded were:—In December, 129 males, 108 females—total, 237; in January, 142 males, 107 females—total, 249; in February, 87 males, 74 females—total, 161; giving a total of 647. The above figures show an excess of 359 births over the deaths during the past three months. During the quarter the infantile mortality (under the age of five years) numbered 328, occurring as follows:—During December: 69 males; 53 females—122. During January: 56 males; 62 females—118. During February: 46 males; 42 females—88. The above return shows the deaths of children under the age of five years to have been more than half the number of total deaths of all ages during the months of December and February. Amongst the principal diseases registered as the cause of death are:—Measles, 1; whooping cough, 2; typhoid fever, 29; dysentery, 7; diarrhoea, 49; cancer, 9; tabes mesenterica, 22; phthisis, 56; cephalitis, 13; apoplexy, 9; paralysis, 7; convulsions, 41; heart disease, 33; bronchitis, 21; pneumonia, 21; enteritis, 30; nephria, 4; premature birth, 18; teething, 14; old age, 15; atrophy and debility (infants), 73. The mortality from measles has decreased during this quarter as shown by 7 deaths being recorded in three months ending November 30, and only 1 in the three ending on the 29th of last month. Since my last quarterly report typhoid fever has been on the increase in different parts of the city, as shown by the following table giving the number of deaths that have occurred in each ward:—December—Gipps, nil; Bourke, 5; Brisbane, nil; Macquarie, nil; Cook, 1; Fitzroy, nil; Philip, nil; Denison, 1. January—Gipps, nil; Bourke, 7; Brisbane, nil; Macquarie, nil; Cook, 1; Fitzroy, 3; Philip, 1; Denison, 1. February—Gipps, 2; Bourke, 4; Brisbane, nil; Macquarie, nil; Cook, 1; Fitzroy, 1; Philip, nil; Denison, 1. Total—Gipps, 2; Bourke, 16; Brisbane, nil; Macquarie, nil; Cook, 3; Fitzroy, 4; Philip, 1; Denison, 3. Sydney Hospital is in Bourke Ward, and St. Vincent's Hospital in Fitzroy. The prevalence of fever and the large infantile mortality may be attributed to the heat and enervating weather that have been experienced during this summer, combined with the want of rain either in heavy thunderstorms or a steady lengthened downpour. In all hot climates the necessity of flushing the sewers and drains is always a source of anxiety to the conservators of health, and in the absence of storms or heavy rains, unless there is an unlimited supply of water ready at all times for such purposes, this anxiety cannot be removed. To meet this as far as practicable in this city, I would suggest for your consideration that during the absence of rain water carts should be sent daily to every gully shaft, and sufficient salt water should be put into each as to make their traps sewer gas-proof, and in other parts of Sydney where the drainage is on the surface that the gutters should be swept every day and flushed as often as circumstances would permit. The want of rain and the limited supply of fresh water that has compelled the city engineer to warn all consumers of the Sydney water to be as careful in the use of it as is possible, and to abstain from using plunge baths, &c., ought to cause the citizens of this city and suburbs to look for a remedy, so that they might always have the luxury and health-bestowing comfort of a bath of any kind they might prefer, as it has been from the earliest ages considered that cleanliness is one of the great essentials to health, and cannot long be done without, else secretions of the body are interfered with. This luxury and necessity—I mean the bathing and keeping the skin clean, &c.—could be easily obtained by a constant supply of clean sea water to different parts of the city, where there could be erected swimming and other baths; and from this source private houses could be supplied with saltwater in the same manner as they are at present with fresh. The saltwater for this purpose should not be pumped from any part of the harbour, unless close to the Heads, as nearer to the city it is polluted more or less with sewage and other poisonous matter. G. F. DANSEY."

CITY SURVEYOR'S REPORT.

The City Surveyor presented a half-yearly report, showing the quantities of wood, stone, and tar paving laid in the city: also of forming, ballasting, and kerbing done. The report also stated that the most noticeable feature of the half-year had been the extension of the wood paving in George-street between King and Hunter streets, and between Park and Bathurst streets, and the paving of Sussex-street, between King and Bathurst streets with bluestone cube sets. Advantage had been taken to renew the kerbing, and to substitute bluestone for the less durable sandstone. Where necessary, the surface drainage had been improved by enlarging and renewing gully shafts, and in some cases correcting the grades of the street by slightly altering the levels of water tables and footways. A plan that would show the actual extent of kerbing existing in the various public ways of the city at the time of the passing of the Corporation Act of 1879 was completed, and would be a valuable record for reference in the case of disputed alignments.

CORONER'S INQUESTS.

FATAL TRAM ACCIDENT.

The City Coroner held an inquest at the South Sydney Morgue, yesterday morning, on the body of a man named John Maguire, who was killed by the tram near Belmore Park on Saturday night last. Frederick Powell, carter, residing at 37, Little Gipps-street, deposed that the deceased, who was a carter, and had also resided at 37, Little Gipps-street, was 27 years of age, and a single man; the deceased had been about three years in the colony; witness knew nothing of the circumstances connected with his death. Dr. Belgrave deposed that between 6 and 7 o'clock on Saturday evening he was travelling by tram, and when near the entrance to Belmore Park the tram stopped in consequence of two others being before it; learning that an accident had occurred, he got out of the car, and went in the direction of the supposed accident to see if he could render any assistance: two policemen were present, and witness saw a man lying on the ground; the constable asked him to examine him, and he did so, and found that the man was dead; the man could not have been dead many seconds, as the body was quite warm; the clothing on the deceased was scanty and much worn, and tore with the least touch; the deceased's face was covered with cinders and soot, and his mouth also contained a quantity of cinder; there was a blood oozing from the ears, and witness did not smell any drink on the deceased; the deceased's arm and thigh were broken, and the bones were protruding; the deceased also had a scalp wound, but there was no satisfactory evidence of the bones of the head being broken; in witness's opinion death had resulted from shock. Dr. Milford, who had examined the body of the deceased, gave evidence respecting the injuries received, and stated that they were sufficient to cause death. Henry Hayes, carter, residing at 22, Little Gipps-street, deposed that about 7 o'clock on Saturday evening he was in Belmore Park, and saw the deceased coming from the direction of the Belmore markets; the deceased entered the park at the gate, crossed the tram line, and went as far as the water fountain; he then turned back and went as far as the tram line; at the same time a motor with two cars attached was coming from the direction of the railway station, and witness heard some one on it call out "Keep back," the deceased was then in the act of stepping on to the up line, and as he did so the motor appeared to be on him; witness next saw him under the motor. To a juror: A man might have been on the lookout without witness seeing him; the deceased was pretty well drunk, witness noticed that in the park, about ten minutes before the accident happened. Henry Harris, engine driver, deposed that he was employed on the Botany line on Saturday afternoon last, and left Botany on a motor with two cars attached at about 6 o'clock; they reached Belmore Park at about 20 minutes to 7 o'clock; when going over the first crossing witness sounded the whistle as usual, but did not see anyone within the rails; just as the motor had got over the crossing a man jumped in front of it from the down line; the fireman at that time was to the best of witness's knowledge in the front of the motor; witness reversed the engine, and applied the brake, and did everything he could to prevent an accident; the motor was brought to a standstill within seven or eight yards; it had been travelling from six to seven miles an hour; he could not say whether the lamp at the crossing was alight; the lamp on the motor was lighted at Waterloo, and was burning brightly when the tram arrived at No. 2 police station; when the tram stopped witness got off and saw the deceased lying with his body and leg under the motor, and his head upon one of the rails of the up line; when the deceased was taken out and laid upon the grass he was dead. Evidence was also given by Arthur Simpson, fireman on the tram in question. Constable James gave evidence with regard to the removal of the body to the morgue. The jury returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased died from injuries accidentally received.

SUPPOSED CASE OF POISONING.

The City Coroner initiated an inquiry at his chambers, yesterday afternoon, on the body of a woman named Mary Jane Thomas, who died in the Sydney Hospital on Sunday. The following evidence was taken at the inquiry:—Sarah Green, boardinghouse keeper, residing at 288, Kent-street, deposed that the deceased, who was 28 years of age, was a married woman; her husband was away at sea; she had left a little girl about three years of age, and had been living with witness for five months; the deceased had not been sober for more than two days out of three weeks, and was a woman of intemperate habits; she was subject to fits, and had two fits on Saturday last; she was then drunk, and went to bed shortly after 10 o'clock on Saturday night, at which time she was getting sober; witness heard her complaining, and went into her room and found that she was ill; she had nothing in her hand when witness went into the room, but she told witness that she had been to the tap for some cold water; witness gave her some tea, but she was not able to drink it; she did not ask deceased if she had taken anything; deceased gave her a bottle on Saturday night, and said she had taken all that it had contained; the bottle had a peculiar smell, something like brandy; witness thought the deceased was dying, and she took her to the hospital on Sunday morning; when the deceased gave her the bottle on Saturday night witness said, "You have poisoned yourself," and deceased replied, "The sooner the better, when Alf. (meaning her husband) comes home he will have a trip to Haslem's Creek;" witness had often heard her say she would drink herself to death, and also that she would throw herself into the water and drown herself. Jane Brown, married woman, residing at 288, Kent-street, with the last witness, deposed that she had known the deceased for about four months, during which time she had often seen her the worse for liquor; the deceased was subject to fits; she heard the deceased say once that she went down to the water with her little daughter and would have drowned herself had it not been for a policeman; she believed the deceased had fits on Saturday; she was the worse for liquor on that day. Dr. Cutts, one of the resident medical officers at the Sydney Hospital, deposed that about half-past 11 o'clock on Sunday morning the deceased was brought to the hospital by the witness Green; when he saw her she was in a state of collapse; the symptoms exhibited were those of narcotic poisoning and were indicative of belladonna poisoning; witness applied the usual restoratives, but without success as the deceased died about half an hour after admission; no distinct odour could be detected in the contents of the stomach. At this stage the inquest was adjourned until Wednesday, the 19th instant, in order that a post-mortem examination of the body might be made.

THE LATE ELECTION FOR EAST SYDNEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The letter of Mr. R. C. Luscombe which was published in your paper of Saturday is as cool a piece of "high falutin" as I have met with for many a day. Mr. Luscombe is always threatening the colony through the press with the mighty deeds he is about performing on behalf of protection, but when the time comes for action he kicks up a dust and retires. In other words, he hangs out the white feather, and for a time hides his diminished head. Your columns no doubt testify that Mr. Luscombe is a gentleman of a very retiring disposition. The meekness with which he bows to the fiat of what he calls "his party" reminds one of the fatalistic submission of an Eastern ryot to his master when he receives a bowstring from him, with a message that he is to go and hang himself. Now, what is this party of which Mr. Luscombe speaks? If I am to be guided by the information contained on different occasions in your paper, I should suppose it consisted of some six or seven persons who meet in some obscure place in this city about once a week or fortnight, à la the Tooley-street tailors, to settle the affairs of the nation. I observe from your reports that the changes are rung in a most artistic style on the names of the six or seven wiseacres who sit in solemn conclave at the aforesaid meetings. One moves and another seconds a motion intrinsically of much importance, and it is agreed to or rejected by a great majority—at least so we are informed; and so goes on the work of this large and influential party. Now, in the name of all that is reasonable, how was the cause of this redoubtable protectionist party served by the retirement of its candidate from the recent contest for East Sydney? Both the other candidates were freetraders. Nevertheless, it appears from the explanation of Mr. Luscombe that his retirement was an act of diplomacy in the interests of his party, of which he has personally much reason to feel proud. Of a truth, some of us mortals are thankful for very small mercies.

I suspect, Sir, that you have hit the mark in your statement that Mr. Luscombe would not risk his little deposit of £40, which is a salutary check on the aspirations of political agitators, who dearly love political gasconading which costs them little or nothing. If you have not afforded the true solution of this question, why, oh, why, did not Mr. Luscombe let the electors of East Sydney have an opportunity of proving through the medium of the ballot-box what they thought of him and protection?

Sydney. I am, &c., SENEX.

It could be rubbed off like dandruff, and at times causing intolerable itching and the most intense suffering. I have used blood purifiers, pills, and other advertised remedies, but experienced no relief until I procured the Cuticura remedies, which, although used carelessly and irregularly, cured me, allaying the terrible itching, and restoring my skin to its natural colour. LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—MONDAY, MARCH 10.

Banco Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice WINDEYER and a jury of four.)

EDWARDS V. JARMAN (PART HEARD).

Jury: Thomas Williams, Edward Campbell, John Hawkins, and George Pratt.

Mr. Teece and Dr. Sly, instructed by Messrs. Daintrey and Chapman, for plaintiff; Mr. Rogers and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Mr. T. M. Williamson, for defendant.

Plaintiff brought his action to recover the sum of £150, alleged to be due by the defendant to the plaintiff as balance of account on a contract for the erection of Beresford-chambers in Castlereagh-street. The contract set out that the work was to be done to the satisfaction of Mr. B. Backhouse, the architect, Mr. Jarman, or their deputies. Plaintiff contended that the work had been done to the satisfaction of Mr. Jarman, but that the materials supplied were so inferior, that even with the best workmanship a good result could not be obtained. An item of £380 was proved as being the amount due for 95 rods of brickwork. The defendant proved that there were only 75 rods of work, that the flues of the chimneys were choked up, and that the walls were so much out of plumb that it was necessary to cement them so that they would be passed by the architect.

The jury found for the plaintiff, damages £30 13s.

KINGSLAND AND OTHERS V. FOOLEY AND OTHERS.

Jury: Samuel George Hewett, William Biddles, Robert Howarth Eady, and Ernest Wilkinson.

Mr. Rogers, Mr. O'Connor, and Mr. Ralston, instructed by Mr. T. M. Williamson, for plaintiffs; Mr. Darley, Q.C., and Mr. E. Barton, instructed by Mr. G. E. R. Jones, for defendants.

This was an action brought by plaintiffs against defendants to recover £500 for breach of agreement, by which defendants undertook not to run coaches in opposition to plaintiffs between Goulburn, Queanbeyan, and Cooma, for a period of 10 years.

Before evidence was proceeded with an agreement was arrived at under which the action, and also all other suits pending between the parties were settled, plaintiffs paying to defendants the sum of £100 in lieu of taxed costs, and the agreement of 2nd February, 1881, to be cancelled.

SIMPSON V. BROWN.

Jury: Enos Napper, Charles Beresford Mainstone, Charles James Christie, and Robert Cunningham.

Mr. Owen, Q.C., Mr. Pilcher, and Mr. F. Barton, instructed by Messrs. Want and Johnson, for plaintiff; Mr. Gordon, Q.C., Mr. Darley, Q.C., Mr. Bruce Smith, and Mr. Walker, instructed by Messrs. Deane and Deane, for defendant.

This was an action brought by plaintiff to recover £10,000 damages from defendant for breach of contract in reference to a partnership for the working of certain gravel beds in the Nepean River at Penrith.

Counsel had only opened the case for plaintiff when the Court adjourned.

Jury Court.—(Before His Honor Mr. Justice INNES and a jury of four.)

WRIGHT V. KELLY (PART HEARD).

Jury: John Hinchcliffe, Thomas Lockwood, Charles Bailey, and William James Osgood.

Mr. Owen, Q.C., and Mr. C. Stephen, instructed by Messrs. Want and Johnson, for plaintiff; Mr. C. B. Simpson and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Mr. Cahill (agent for Mr. Hogan), for defendant.

This was an action brought by plaintiff to recover the sum of £55 paid by him as stamp duty on the transfer of a run to defendant. According to plaintiff's statement it appears that in the month of June, 1882, he sold to defendant a run known as Booroomugra in the Warrego district. When the negotiations for sale had been completed an order upon Goldsbrough and Co. was handed over to plaintiff for the payment of £12,000, and plaintiff gave it to Mr. Hogan, his solicitor at Cobar, to be placed to his credit in the bank. Subsequently plaintiff came to Sydney, and finding that the money had not been placed to his credit, he called upon Mr. Cahill, agent in Sydney for Mr. Hogan, to ask for an explanation as to the delay, and ascertained from him for the first time that the order had been held back until plaintiff paid the duty stamp upon the transfer. In the absence of any special agreement to the contrary, the vendee pays for the duty stamp, and plaintiff swore that no such agreement was made, but as he could not get the order from Hogan, who at that time was, by consent, acting for both parties, he paid the amount of the duty stamp, under protest. The only contention between the parties was as to whether plaintiff did or did not agree to relieve defendant of the necessity of paying for the duty stamp, and upon this the evidence was conflicting. The defence set up was that there was a special agreement that the vendor should pay for the duty stamp, and defendant gave evidence which to some extent was corroborated by Mr. Hogan, that plaintiff agreed to complete the transfer at his own cost, and defendant was then to hand over the balance of the purchase money to plaintiff.

Counsel having addressed the jury,

His HONOR summed up, pointing out the conflicting nature of the evidence. Wright swore positively that he never came under any agreement to bear any of the expenses which, in the ordinary course, the vendee would have to pay, with the exception of £2 2s. for the transfer, and that the duty stamp was not mentioned at all. Defendant, on the other hand, stated that when he was taking steps to have the purchase money placed to plaintiff's credit, he told him that when he had paid for the transfer at his own expense and paid the costs, he would hand over the balance to him, and to this plaintiff assented. The jury would have to consider whether plaintiff, without receiving sixpence consideration, would saddle himself with an expense the exact amount of which perhaps he did not know, and which he might have considered would be a tolerably large transaction. Possibly Wright did not know what the law was, and he might have thought he was bound to pay the duty stamp; and if so, that would get rid of the presumption that he would not be likely to place this obligation upon his own shoulders for no inducement at all.

The jury found that plaintiff did agree to pay the duty stamp, and a verdict was entered for the defendant, subject to leave reserved to appeal to the full Court.

KENNEDY V. SHEILL.

Jury: Robert Guy, Arthur William Francis, Robert Meiklejohn, and James Hunter.

Mr. Knox, instructed by Messrs. Slattery and Heydon, for plaintiff; Dr. Sly, instructed by Mr. Fergusson (for Mr. John Davidson), for defendant.

This was an action for the trial of issues under the Real Property Act, to decide the ownership of 100 acres of land situated near Lake Bathurst. The plaintiff was Nicholas Joseph Kennedy, and the defendant Thomas Sheill, and the issues to be tried were whether one Michael Lehane paid rent in respect to the land to William Francis Kennedy, father of plaintiff, or his wife, Mary Kennedy, during the period from the 30th September, 1857, to the 30th September, 1877, the latter being the date upon which plaintiff applied to bring the land under the provisions of the Real Property Act; whether one William Davernon, referred to in the case of the caveator, being in the occupation of the said land, paid rent in respect to the land to William Francis Kennedy; and whether the applicant, Nicholas Joseph Kennedy, was heir-at-law to William Francis Kennedy and Mary Kennedy his wife. Plaintiff set up a documentary title extending back to the grant from the Crown in 1839, and defendant's title was by a conveyance from Davernon, who sold the land to him in 1880, and who, it was contended, held a possessory title for more than 20 years.

The jury unanimously found for the plaintiff on all the issues.

FERRIER V. BARBOUR.

Jury: Joseph Boylson, William White, Lyall Scott, and John Parry.

Mr. Pilcher, instructed by Mr. Gibbes (for Campbell and Campbell, of Naranders), for plaintiff; Mr. Bruce Smith, instructed by Mr. J. Aitken, for defendant.

This was an action to recover £264 10s. 4d, for goods sold and delivered.

The case was only part heard when the Court adjourned.

In Equity.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice FAUCETT.)

MURPHY V. CADE.

Mr. Lingen, instructed by Messrs. Slattery and Heydon, for the plaintiff; Mr. C. E. Pilcher and Mr. W. G. Walker, instructed by Messrs. Iceton and Faithfull, for the defendant.

This was a suit instituted by Michael Murphy, of Phil's Creek, near Cootamundra, to have the plaintiff, as administrator of the late Sampson Cade, compelled to specifically perform a contract for the sale of two farms, measuring respectively 43 and 31 acres of land, which contract plaintiff alleged was entered into by him with Sampson Cade before his death, in 1873. The plaintiff's story was that he went to see Cade, who was dying, and at that time blind, Cade's wife said, "Here is Murphy come to buy the farms," and the sale was made on the spot, the price named being £50; some time afterwards a sale-note was drawn up and signed by Mary Cade, with Sampson Cade's approval; and plaintiff having paid off a mortgage of £22 to one Laidlaw, gave Mrs. Cade £28 and took possession of the deeds. After Cade's death, Mrs. Cade gave plaintiff the possession of a third farm, with the deeds as security for an advance of £20. It was contended that Mrs. Cade had authority to act for her husband, and if she had not, she had acted in the capacity of administrator de son tort. The plaintiff also sought to have the defendant restrained from putting a verdict in an action for ejectment which he had obtained into force.

Mrs. Berry, the widow of Sampson Cade, stated that she did not sell the farms to plaintiff, but only gave him possession of them for his life, by way of consideration for the advances he had made, and always under the proviso that any of her family were to be allowed to redeem.

His HONOR said he felt considerable difficulty in this case, because he found a claim set up which was not made out by the evidence, and also because the defence was contradicted by the other side. The evidence as to the sale at the deathbed of Cade was very unsatisfactory, though he was on the whole inclined to consider Murphy's account of what took place to be more truthful than that of Mrs. Berry, who was then Mrs. Cade. If Murphy's evidence were true, there was a verbal sale of the property. The plaintiff, however, relied upon the written contract, which was not produced. The evidence as to the witness Handcock, having drawn up the document was very uncertain. If the document had been drawn up in Cade's lifetime, it was quite possible he would hold the land to have been sold by Cade. It was not surprising that there should be uncertainty on this point, considering the lapse of time. There was no evidence to show that Cade had this document read to him. Handcock had no recollection of the document which appeared in the pleadings having been copied. Handcock had said that the document did not strictly represent the transaction, yet it was strange he should have allowed it to go out of his possession in that state. The document assigned showed no signature, and only commenced, "I, Mary Cade, have this day sold." He was left to assume that the document was signed. No authority given by Cade to his wife could exist after his death. The bank manager's evidence went to show that Mrs. Cade had called upon him with Murphy, but they could not get the deeds. The document, as construed by the plaintiff, was that the deeds were not delivered when the document was signed. If the document were an instrument of sale executed by Cade or by his wife, with his authority, why should they have the children of Cade signing it? What right had they to consent if the sale took place during the lifetime of Cade? This was some evidence that the sale took place after Cade's death. The fact that the children signed afterwards showed the weakness of Murphy's case. If this were an absolute sale, it was at a very considerable undervalue, the property being sworn to be worth £150. There was property worth that amount said to have been sold by Cade on his deathbed to the plaintiff for £50. Looking at all the circumstances, he felt that there was no evidence to show that this transaction, if it did take place, was with the consent of Cade. He, therefore, came to the conclusion that Murphy could not hold the land as purchaser. Now he came to another difficulty because it was set out in the statement of defence that this was a loan in the lifetime of Cade; but the defendants actually denied this in their evidence. His opinion, however, was based a good deal on Murphy's story, and he considered the transaction to be one of loan. He did not see how he could look upon Mrs. Murphy in any other light than as an executrix de son tort, because she was paying the debts of the deceased. Seeing that she had been allowed to deal with the estate for so long he considered that Murphy's advances must be paid out of the estate. He thought he ought to declare that the plaintiff had a lien for the amounts advanced, viz., £50 on the two farms and £22 on Poplin's farm. Seeing that Murphy had had possession of the land he should not have interest. That would make the account very simple. The plaintiff might remove any fencing which had not been set up. As to costs he would give the plaintiff his costs, because he had succeeded in establishing a claim to an account. He would read the affidavits as to the ejectment, and see how the costs of that proceeding should go, but his present impression was that the defendant should have them. He felt very unwilling to cast any reflection upon Mr. Murphy, because he was not disinclined to believe his statement of the facts, still he could not give him a decree in view of the difficulties which surrounded the case.

Counsel came to an agreement that possession should be delivered up on payment of the amount advanced, subject to the order of the Court in respect to the costs of the ejectment action.

M'LEAN AND ANOTHER V. HODGES AND OTHERS.

Mr. Lingen for the plaintiffs; Mr. H. F. Barton for the defendants.

Mr. Lingen moved for a decree by consent for the partition of the property in question, situated in King and Kent streets, subject to proof that the representatives of all the parties had been briefed.

His HONOR made a decree for a partition in terms of the prayer. Further consideration and costs were reserved.

M'GIRR V. KELLY.

Mr. H. F. Barton, instructed by Messrs. Slattery and Heydon, for the plaintiff; Mr. Coghlan, instructed by Messrs. Coonan and Ryan, for the defendants.

This is a suit to have the defendant declared a trustee for the plaintiff of the conditional purchases in question, situated near Parkes.

The case stands as part heard.

In the Jury Court yesterday, William Langham, gentleman, and John Burton, publican, were each fined 40s. for non-attendance as jurors. In the Banco Court, Aaron Green, grocer; William Seaward, warehouseman; and Patrick Howard, clerk, were also fined 40s. each for non-attendance.

INSOLVENCY COURT.—MONDAY.

In the matter of Charles Henry Edward Chauvel. The meeting lapsed, and a fresh meeting was called for Monday next.

In the matter of Sun, Hang, Loong and Co. An examination meeting was held; Mr. Sly appeared for the official assignee. Ah Sing stated that he was a merchant, and signed his cheques Sum Kum On. He was never a partner with the insolvents, but when they became insolvent he paid the wages of their men. He gave several cheques to Wat A Che when he was short of money, but he did not know what the borrower wanted the money for, and never had any security. There was no agreement to pay interest, and he never told Mr. Wright that he was a partner in the firm of Sun, Hang, Loong, and Co. up to September. He had none of Wat A Che's property in his possession, and did not know where it was. Wat A Che stated that he was the insolvent in this case. He knew Ah Sing, trading as Sum Kum On. He himself commenced business as a cabinetmaker on the 24th May, 1880, his partners being Ah Kum, Leong Kum, and Chum Lin Che, and the partnership lasted until September last year, when Ah Kum went out of it. Ah Sing was never a partner, but when they were hard up he used to lend them money. He never told Mr. Wright, of Goodsell and Co., that Ah Sing was a partner. They had an account with him, but the books were all burnt in the fire, and they only guessed the names of the persons who owed them money. More than 50 persons worked for them and were paid in cash, either from money from the bank, or from money the firm borrowed. The examination then terminated.

In the matter of August Ludwig Deutscher. Mr. Coonan for the proved creditor examined the insolvent. August Ludwig Deutscher stated that he lived at Temora. On the 30th March, 1883, a verdict was recorded against him by Barry for £150, and on returning to Temora he placed his property in the hands of Messrs. Warby and Orbell. He instructed them to sell 640 acres of conditional purchased land, as the A. J. S. Bank was pressing him. He owed the bank between £700 and £800. He had executed a mortgage to the bank in 1881, and then owed them £1600. He sold the equity of redemption for £150 to Robert May, a farmer, on the 26th April last year. May paid the £150 in one sum, and he would swear it was not his money May paid over. He asked May for a situation. With the £150 he paid several people he owed money to. He was living on the selection, and paying no rent, but receiving £2 10s. a week for looking after it. He received about £100 from gold-mining claims on the selection. He received £6 last Monday. He knew George East, and gave him a bill of sale in April last over his furniture. The bill of sale was for £30, which he had borrowed from him three years before. He did not, on the 28th of last June, receive a loan of £50 from East. After he found that the rule absolute was refused, East came and seized the insolvent's furniture. He put a man in charge of it, and it had remained in the insolvent's house ever since at a weekly rental of half-a-crown. At the time that the verdict was given against him he had 150 shares in the Barmedman Company, which he gave away to William East, to whom he owed about £3. William East was a selector, residing half-way between Temora and Sebastapol. In July he received £53 from the Mutual Provident Society as a loan upon a policy. He did not know what he had done with it. The policy was for £250. He had been managing for Mr. May, who paid him £2 10s. a week, sometimes in cash and sometimes by cheque. He never offered to pay £130 to Barry. He offered £80, and afterwards £100. He would swear he had no land except that selection, and no horses either. The examination then closed.

SURRENDERS.

John J. Owens, of West Kempsey, carpenter. Liabilities, £92 0s. 2d. Assets, £4 10s. Mr. Lloyd, official assignee.

Cornelius Bishop, of Waterloo, glass manufacturer. Liabilities, £213 8s. 9d. Assets, £5. Mr. Stephen, official assignee.

Charles E. Jamieson, of Sydney, draftsman in the Railway Survey Department. Liabilities, £147 17s. Assets, £5. Mr. Macnab, official assignee.

Edward Pearce, of Narrabri, fruiterer. Liabilities, £189 7s. 6d. Assets, £33. Mr. Macnab, official assignee.

Edward M'Naugh, of Lismore, saddler. Liabilities, £101 18s. 9d. Assets, £20. Mr. Lloyd, official assignee.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.—MONDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge FORBES.)

CARR V. CITY MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.

This was a claim for £200 on a policy of fire insurance. Mr. R. S. Haynes appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. G. B. Simpson, instructed by Mr. F. B. Freehill, for the defendant. The plaintiff was Lewis Orlando Carr, a picture framemaker, who had carried on business at a shop in George-street West. He had insured his stock for £160, tools of trade for £15, and household furniture and effects for £25, the policy being for £200. On the night of the 29th July plaintiff noticed a smell of gas escaping in his shop. He went, he deposed, near the meter, lit a match for the purpose of finding out where the escape was and an explosion took place. That caused the fire, by which a lot of goods were damaged. Plaintiff sent in a claim for £127 12s. The defendant company sent a Mr. Fisher to value the goods, and he made up an estimate of £107 17s. Plaintiff had agreed to accept that sum, but it had never been paid to him. At the close of the case for the plaintiff, Mr. Simpson, in accordance with one of the pleas, took the point that there had been no adjustment, as was required by the thirteenth condition of the policy, which was as follows:—"If any difference shall arise between the company and the assured in the adjustment of any claim for loss or damage, the amount, if any, to be paid by the company shall, whether the right to recover on the policy be disputed or not, and independently of all other questions, be submitted to arbitration in such a manner as is now or may be hereafter provided by the statute regulating the reference of disputes or questions affecting companies to arbitration; or if there be no such statute in force one arbitrator shall be appointed by the company and one by the assured; and in case of the arbitrators differing therein, the amount shall be submitted to the arbitration of an umpire, to be chosen by the arbitrators before they proceed to act, and the award of the arbitrators or umpire shall be conclusive evidence of the amount of the loss, and the assured shall not be entitled to commence or maintain any action at law or suit in equity upon his policy until the amount of the loss shall have been referred and determined as hereinbefore provided, and then only for the amount so awarded; and this shall be a condition precedent to any right of action under the policy." Mr. Simpson argued that adjustment of the claim was a condition precedent to the taking of any legal proceedings, and that "an adjustment was an admission on the supposition of certain facts stated that the assured were entitled to recover on the policy," and cited Dawson v. Fitzgerald, 2 Ex. Div., p. 257; Barnett v. City Mutual Fire Insurance Company, 3 N. S. W. law reports, p. 285; Bunyan on Fire Insurance, p. 127; and Roscoe, Nisi Prius, p. 402. The plaintiff was non-suited.

CLAYTON V. JACOBSON.

This was an action brought to recover £100 for alleged breach of agreement. Mr. Wallace for plaintiff, and Mr. J. M. Curtis for defendant. Arthur Clayton, the plaintiff, claimed £40 for clearing and grubbing land at Lane Cove, and £60 damages for breach of agreement in respect to the clearing, &c., of the land, which was owned by Mrs. Catherine Jacobson. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for £17 18s. 6d.

DOVE V. JACOBSON.

This action was of a similar nature to the above. Mr. Wallace appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Curtis for the defendant. The plaintiff, Charles Dove, claimed £28 18s. for certain work, and £71 2s. for damages for alleged breach of agreement. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for £18.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.—MONDAY.

The Attorney-General, assisted by Mr. W. J. Foster and Mr. Gibson, prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

Thomas Thornton, Thomas Conway, John Foley, Patrick Fahey, and John Hourigan were again placed in the dock, charged with the murder of one Margaret Owen at Mount Carmel, Waterloo, on the 26th December, 1883.

Mr. G. H. Reid, instructed by Mr. T. M. Williamson, appeared for the prisoner Thornton; Mr. D. Buchanan, instructed by Mr. T. M. Williamson, for Foley; Mr. E. P. Field for Conway; Mr. Heydon, instructed by Mr. Murray White, for Fahey and Hourigan.

Mr. Reid commenced his address to the jury in the prisoner Thornton's defence at a quarter-past 10 o'clock, prefacing his remarks by saying that he would make his address as brief as possible, and would refer very briefly to the facts of the case. It was for the jury to put away all feelings in the matter, and to base their verdict solely upon the facts of the case as presented to them in the evidence. The Crown, in preparing that evidence, had great resources and an unlimited amount of money, and could place its witnesses at boarding-houses, with servants to wait upon them, and they must observe that the Crown had made every effort in order to sheet home this charge. The first thing to be done in this case was to prove that a murder had been committed, that the death of Margaret Owen was caused by murder. On this point they had the evidence of two medical men, Dr. Milford and Dr. Dansey. The former made an examination of the one particular set of organs of the deceased, and said that he found nothing there to account for the death. Dr. Dansey had made an examination of the whole of the body, and found injuries upon it, none of which could have caused death; there was only one injury which could have caused death; but that one there was the least evidence about. There was no external mark about that injury, and no evidence to show that it was not caused by accident. They were told that the woman Owen was drunk, staggering, and surrounded by a crowd of young lads, any one of whom, he contended, might have caused the mysterious injury. But here there was a remarkable discrepancy in the evidence. One would have thought the Crown would have proved by medical testimony that the woman's death arose from one particular cause, and at some particular time; but the extraordinary discrepancy was this: that no medical evidence had been given to show how long a time must have elapsed from the particular blow being received and the woman's death. The jury might well have expected to have had this matter put clearly before them, to have been told that this injury must have been inflicted within a certain period; but, so far as the evidence went, the blow might have been inflicted on some previous day, or it might have been caused by a fall upon a tuft of grass. The learned gentleman then proceeded to comment upon the evidence for the prosecution, directing the attention of the jury particularly to the evidence of the witness Frances Logan given at the inquest, afterwards at the Police Court, and again on the present trial. He pointed out several discrepancies in her evidence, and contended that the Crown had failed in a material point by not producing the man W. Hughes, who she said was with her on the second occasion of her going to the woman. But they had not done so; why, he could not understand. In this witness's first evidence she said she was away about five minutes looking for the police. On this trial she said she was away from a little after 10 till between 12 and 1 o'clock; but the Crown had not attempted to produce any evidence to corroborate this woman's evidence. Was her evidence so reliable that it should be taken without corroboration against the evidence of an array of respectable witnesses whom he had produced? He pronounced her evidence as wholy unreliable, and contended that she had perjured herself in open Court in respect to the letters alleged to have been written by her from Windsor, and that the other discrepancies in her evidence, as well as the woman's admitted manner of life, rendered her a most unreliable witness. The evidence against his client was uncorroborated and unreliable, and he asked at their hands a verdict of acquittal.

Mr. Field said that before addressing the jury on behalf of his client Conway he would submit to his Honor a matter of law. The Crown had endeavoured to show that the prisoners had committed murder during an attempt to commit another offence; but on account of the omission of four words from section 9 of the Act, the case for the Crown must fall to the ground. The four words omitted were "a crime punishable by," and these should have been inserted between the word "or" and the word "penal" in the third line from the bottom of the section. As the section read at present, the words meant that the crime was one with an alternative punishment—namely, death or penal servitude. The other crime, however, was by section 387 punishable by death only, and was not therefore at all provided for in section 9. As to the other heads in the definition of murder, the Crown had not produced any evidence at all. He submitted, therefore, that as against the prisoner Conway there was no case to go to the jury.

His HONOR refused to withdraw Conway's case from the jury, but reserved the point.

The learned counsel then addressed the jury in Conway's defence. He contended that there was no proof of the unfortunate woman Owen's death having been the result of anything else than accident, but there were several circumstances which went to show that it must have been accidentally caused. The injuries committed during the assault were not of such a nature as would have caused her death. The woman, when asked by Mrs. Logan to go down, got up, and was it not probable that, in staggering, she had received the injury by coming into contact with the fence? He then referred to contradictions in Mrs. Logan's evidence, and said that even if the jury accepted her evidence, it only went to show that the man was present at the time, and nothing more. He was not aiding or abetting in any way, and he concluded by asking his Honor to direct the jury that in order to find Conway guilty, they must find (1) that he was present, and (2) that he was aiding and abetting. He left the case with confidence in their hands.

Mr. Buchanan addressed the jury on behalf of the prisoner Foley. After referring to the feelings of indignation and horror excited throughout the community by the perpetration of the crime, feelings which had been intensified by the articles and references in the press of the colony, he asked the jury to disregard those expressions of opinion, to banish from their minds any preconceived opinions, and to try the case solely on its merits. He then proceeded to refer to the medical testimony, which, he argued, failed entirely to prove that the death of the woman Owen was caused by murder, or that it was the result of anything else than accident. The evidence showed that the suffusion of blood on the brain might have been caused by the bursting of a bloodvessel, not as the result of violence, but of excitement. The learned gentleman then referred to the evidence of the "wretched witnesses" for the Crown, and asked if their testimony was to be taken against the galaxy of respectable people called for the defence. The evidence went to show that Foley was not present at the outrage. According to the witness Logan, there was a crowd, but she did not see Foley among them. Then when Smith came down some time afterwards, Foley was standing at the Duke of Wellington Hotel; and the principal witnesses for the Crown showed that Foley was not among the people. The evidence afterwards given by Logan on this point contradicted Smith's evidence; but other witnesses came forward, and their evidence in no way convicted Foley. There were some curious discrepancies in the evidence, but Logan did not touch him at all beyond saying that he was one of 20 near the outrage. He could not imagine how the jury could possibly find the prisoner Foley guilty in the absence of conclusive evidence, and what evidence there was, from such unreliable sources. In conclusion, he asked the jury in all solemnity—he implored them—not to send those unfortunate youths to their account on the evidence of two notorious people, stained from head to foot with immorality, aided by the approver, who, upon his own confession, was equally bad. He asked them not to fasten on that temple of justice, by so acting, a stigma that time itself would never be able to remove. In the name of justice, he asked them to discard all those polluted instruments which the Crown had brought forward as witnesses in this case, and to save the purity of the tribunal he was addressing from the everlasting odium of sending those five unhappy youths to their doom on evidence so hateful in its moral worthlessness that it would be rejected and despised even by the most degraded, and which every upright honest mind would feel shocked and horrified at being asked to believe or even to listen to for one single moment. He asked them, as men, to shrink from such an appalling danger, and to save their peace of mind and future comfort from the deplorable, the terrible reflection that they had sent those five unfortunate lads to a cruel and ignominous death on evidence so vile that the lowest depth of depravity and even crime itself would reject with detestation, horror, and disgust.

Mr. Heydon addressed the jury in defence of the prisoners Fahey and Hourigan, asking them to disabuse their thoughts of all previous considerations on the subject, and to bring unbiassed minds to the weighing of the evidence that had been placed before them. The prisoners were on trial for their lives, and he asked the jury to bear in mind the fact that if they found a verdict of guilty against them it would be followed by the extreme penalty of the law. He asked them to remember that there were two sides to the question, and whilst considering the evidence and the circumstances of the woman Owen's death to take into consideration also the excellent characters these two youths had received from different classes, amongst them the police. He pointed out that if the accused gave evidence of good character it was then for the Crown to produce evidence to the contrary; but this had not been done. It was clearly before them then that those two prisoners, these two boys, were of good character; the police had nothing against them, and their neighbours and acquaintances had spoken well of them. Mr. Heydon then proceeded at length to refer to the evidence against his clients. Mrs. Logan had shown that she was a most wretched flippant, careless witness. At the inquest, though recalled three times, she never once mentioned the name of Hourigan; it was on the present trial that she introduced him for the first time. Would they hang a dog on evidence of such a nature? She had stated, as her opinion, that it was Smith who was at the head of the woman Owen; on this trial she made Hourigan fill the gap. To make the tally complete she struck out the wretched informer, and put the poor boy in his place. The learned gentleman referred to the evidence of the various witnesses for the prosecution, and contended it was of the most unsatisfactory and unreliable character. The evidence of Smith he regarded as worthless, and defied the Crown to get any evidence corroborative of that witness' story. Smith's life had been in the most imminent danger, and to save it he came to the conclusion that he must convict more than one. It was useless his telling a story that would convict only one person—he must name two, and then it would be worth while for the Crown to let him off. But Smith's evidence, while supplying some one to fill the part he himself had been enacting at the outrage, contradicted the evidence of several other witnesses. For instance, he contradicted Byles' evidence upon the number round the woman, because Byles' account made the number too few to suit Smith. Smith also contradicted the evidence of that most unimpeachable witness, Ellen Coffey; and he contradicted the evidence of Mrs. Logan also. Indeed, there was not a single witness for the Crown whom he did not contradict. He (Mr. Heydon) failed to see that there was any evidence corroborative of Smith's testimony. With respect to Fahey, he pointed out how weak the evidence was against him; and, after pointing out the discrepancies in the evidence, he contended that there was nothing whatever on which they could convict of murder, and concluded by claiming for his clients an acquittal.

The Attorney-General in reply said that some observations had been addressed to the jury concerning the popular feeling against the perpetrators of this crime, and the passion for some kind of vengeance by means of the tribunals upon such persons. He need hardly remind them that in the discharge of their duty they would not permit themselves to be influenced by such considerations, which would be fatal to their impartiality and in violation of their oath. They would, as he had advised them to do, keep themselves uninfluenced by considerations which, if they were suffered to operate, would be more disastrous to society than that the criminals who committed this crime should remain undiscovered and unpunished. For it would be infinitely less fatal to our character that crime should be rampant and unchecked than that the highest courts of justice should be dishonoured by the influences of passion and violence. The length of the inquiry, the number of the witnesses, the dreadful character of the case, the immeasurable importance to society that it should be clearly, fairly, and completely presented to the Court, imposed upon him the heavy responsibility of addressing a few words to the jury in reply. They would be few, because he was unwilling to add to the labour and inconvenience which they had already undergone with so much patience and with such unremitting attention. He would abstain as much as possible from any suggestion of the awful circumstances which invested this fearful case with such inexpressible horror, and he would confine himself to recalling their attention to the main features in the case upon which the Crown relied, and to an examination of the defences which had been set up to meet that case. And in the first place he would advert to those matters about which there could be no doubt. That the unfortunate deceased was on the night of the 25th December last brutally murdered, after having been shamefully outraged, was not questioned; that this murder and these outrages were the work of several persons acting in concert was indisputable. And now the first link in the chain of the evidence against the prisoners at the bar was this: everyone of them was, even on their own showing, on that night in the neighbourhood of the scene of the crime. In the history of great crimes perpetrated in secret, it was sometimes impossible, or at least very difficult, to prove the presence of the accused in the vicinity of the crime. No human eye may have seen him there. His ordinary place of abode may have been far distant. There was no such difficulty here. All the persons charged here certainly lived in the neighbourhood of the crime. He said nothing just then about their identification by the various witnesses for the Crown. He only pointed out that from the scene of the murder their own homes were only separated by a space that could be traversed in a few minutes. In the next place, it was a fact that on that night at some time or other all these prisoners were not only near the murder, but at some time or other out of their own homes. They alleged and endeavoured to prove that they were not so at the time the crime was being committed; and presently, when he came to consider their defence, he would show its striking incompleteness in this respect. Then there had been no suggestion throughout the case of any reason, or motive, or expectation, which could have prompted a single witness for the Crown to charge this hideous offence upon any single one of the prisoners. All these circumstances were clear and undisputed. The learned gentleman then proceeded to go minutely into all the facts of the case as they had been elicited by the testimony of the various witnesses. Before doing so he directed the attention of the jury very carefully to the medical testimony as to the cause of death. The cause of death was compression of the brain by extravasated blood in a clot upon the brain inside the skull. There was no external injury at this spot. This was caused, it is alleged, by a blow on the occipital bone, which caused a counter stroke directly opposite. This was said to be not uncommon in medical experience. The blow on the occipital bone was caused by violence—some blunt instrument, as a toe of a boot, a shut fist, or any such substance, and might have been caused by falling against such a substance, or a stone, as well as by a direct blow—not so probable. This was substantially the medical evidence. The counsel for the defence had argued that more specific evidence as to the injuries—the time at which they would prove fatal, the immediate circumstances surrounding them—should have been given. That evidence was before the jury, and it was for them, and for them alone, to test its value. That the unfortunate deceased was well and healthy and sober at 9 o'clock on the night of her murder was beyond all doubt. That she was a corpse, beaten to death, before sunrise was equally certain. The medical evidence fixed upon a single circumstance as accounting for her death. The learned Attorney-General then alluded to the circumstance that the Crown had been charged with using the most extraordinary and unprecedented energy in bringing about a conviction in this case. He could only say that he was not conscious of any desire, nor sensible of any responsibility but that of a determination that the case should be fully, fairly, and clearly put before the jury. As to the police protection of the woman upon whose evidence much of the case against the prisoners rested, he could only say that in such a case as this but for the vigilance and the powerful protection of the police, such testimony as this would be destroyed; such witnesses would be intimidated, removed—perhaps murdered. As to her alleged moral infamy, it was clear that she was a woman of impure and irregular life. He had never attempted to conceal this. It would have been impossible for him to do so were he capable of such an attempt. In proving such a dreadful crime as this (as he told the jury in his opening speech), the witnesses were not seldom creatures shamefully soiled and disfigured, and made filthy and revolting by the world. In commenting upon Mr. Reid's suggestion as to the motive which might be supposed to influence the witness Logan, the learned Attorney-General said that the jury had been invited to suppose that the woman, having been a friend of the Thorntons—of the female members of that family—and having fallen herself—hated those who had been the companions of her days of childhood and purity. In other words, she revenged her own dishonour by charging the brother of these pure women with murder. They had done her no other injury than contrasting her infamy with their modesty. For this she would, it was suggested, charge their brother with a horrible murder. Could they shut their eyes to the fact that by no human beings were purity and goodness more awfully reverenced than by these unhappy creatures? It was only stainless, tender women, lovely and powerful in their chastity, who could in any way influence or affect such beings. So far from hating purity in others, the loss of their own made them reverence the purity and goodness of others. They were only influenced, or capable of being influenced, by a tender maidenhood or the purest matronly virtue. It had been darkly suggested that, but that Thornton's mouth was closed, he might give some explanation of the motives. It was his (the Attorney-General's) duty to point out that, until Thornton's counsel rose to address the jury, his client's mouth was not closed. By the 470th section of the Criminal Law Amendment Act the prisoner might at the close of the case for the prosecution, and before calling any witness in his defence, and without being liable to examination thereupon by counsel for the Crown or by the Court, might, if so advised by his counsel, make any statement he liked; and thereafter his counsel might address the jury. If Thornton could charge this woman with a motive for murdering him by her perjury, the law had fully provided him with the means of doing so. This was one of such unhappy creatures. He would not exhaust their attention, or add to her shame by any remarks upon her admitted prostitution and established depravity. But foul and polluted as was her body, the world had not altogether destroyed the poor wretch's womanly pity and tenderness. She would permit herself to be dishonoured and degraded, but she would not see a wretched sister outraged and murdered without offering her testimony to bring the murderers to justice. In place of censure and scorn she was in this entitled to sympathy and pity. The learned Attorney-General went through the whole of her evidence, commenting upon its salient points. In commenting upon the defence set up, the learned Attorney-General pointed out that the whole of the prisoners having been clearly identified as participators in the crime, the defence set up was that known as an alibi. The basis of this form of defence was either the absolute untruthfulness of the witnesses for the prosecution, or their entire mistake in the identification of the accused. It is usually established by showing that the person accused was at the time of the alleged crime at such a distance from the scene of its perpetration as to be unable to have been present, to have made his presence a physical impossibility. Sometimes in the history of crimes, when this defence has been attempted, it has been discovered that extraordinary efforts were made to accomplish enormous distances between the place of the crime and the place where the prisoner is, and to have been at the time of its commission. This is a defence which self-possessed and audacious and inglorious criminals have sometimes commenced to construct immediately upon the perpetration of the crime, as by showing themselves quickly at considerable distances from the scene of the crime. In this case no such thing is shown or attempted, or indeed could have been attempted. As far as Thornton was concerned, they knew how the defence was set up. It was probably agreed to and considered on Boxing night or the following night at the house of the Thorntons, where Hughes, his wife, Driscoll, and the members of the family were present. Hughes goes straight to the police station, with the knowledge and on the business of the family. He returned straight to them, and stayed an hour. He then went straight to Mrs. Logan's house, accompanied by his wife and Thornton's sister. For what purpose did he go at once to this woman? He admitted that he had no knowledge of her; she was no friend of his. He knew nothing of her. At that time she had given no evidence. She was a friend of the Thorntons. Why did he leave the two women, his wife and Thornton's sister, and go alone to speak with this woman? He could not name a single person who told him that at that time Mrs. Logan had denounced Thornton as one of the murderers. Neither his wife nor a single member of Thornton's family had told him. How did he know of Mrs. Logan's presence? And how did he commence the conversation? Why, simply by declaring that Thornton was not at the murder. The woman rightly remarked that she did not want anyone to come to her and buy her over. Having seen how the alibi was concocted, how was it proved? The place of the crime was perilously near the place of the alibi. It was from this very circumstance of the vicinity of the place of alibi to that of the crime, absolutely essential to prove that Thornton could not have been absent for more than a very few minutes, and that on only one occasion. If he had been locked up in a room the whole time, if he had been hopelessly and incapably drunk the whole time, or if he had been fast asleep the whole time, the alibi, if the testimony were believed, might be conclusively established; but the prisoner was not locked up, he was only partially drunk, and he was wide awake. Now, what was the testimony? Hughes proved that prisoner came in between 7 and 8 o'clock with Driscoll, sat down beside him (Hughes), and save when he went out at 9 o'clock sat beside him and never moved from his side till half-past 11. Powell swore that prisoner came home alone—came into the kitchen, sat down to his tea, and that so far from Driscoll coming home with prisoner, Driscoll did not come home till half-past 8, and came alone. Driscoll swears that he met Thornton at the Rose of Denmark Hotel at 8.15 going home with a jug of beer in his hand, and that the party was going on when they both arrived. Mrs. Housman, the landlady of the inn, had only seen him once that night at her hotel, and that was from half-past 8 to 20 minutes to 9. Catherine Thornton swears that her brother had no tea, and that he came home alone, and failed to remember whether he brought any beer with him or not. Wenman proved that Driscoll came home a quarter of an hour after she got there. Bridget Thornton deposed that Driscoll came home with prisoner and sat beside her brother. These were the gross and palpable and irreconcilable differences and contradictions. Not a single one of them could remember any hour, or conversation, or period of arrival or departure on any other night before or after that night. At 9 o'clock precisely, they all agreed, the prisoner—then drunk—was sent for the beer. All, he thought, without a single exception, swore that they looked at the clock when he left and when he returned. If they had all miraculously known that a murder was to be committed that night, and prophetically saw that this man would be charged with its perpetration, they could not have acted with more marvellous agreement. Forgetting everything else, they remembered this. This only they recollected. He would not remark upon so astonishing and inexplicable a circumstance. As to the evidence for the defence concerning Fahey and Hourigan, he (the Attorney-General) would only say that he was loth to subject to cross-examination the two unhappy fathers of the prisoners who came to try and save the lives of their children. There were portions of his duty for which he was perhaps unequal. His pity for these parents was too great. But what did they prove? A momentary glimpse of their children; who might both, without the knowledge of their fathers, have immediately left the room into which they passed. The learned Attorney-General, in conclusion, said,—He had laboriously—he could hardly help fearing that he had wearisomely—placed this dreadful case before them. And now his duty and responsibility were both at an end. He had endeavoured, with human difficulty, to control that emotion which the story of the crime so naturally inspired. He had tried to contemplate the case with all the calmness that he could command, and to fix, so far as he was able, the attention of the jury upon those circumstances which would help them to a just conclusion. The awful issue was now with them. It would be a dreadful calamity if such crimes as the one which they were investigating could be perpetrated with impunity. Whatever outward signs of grace, or beauty, or culture a community presented—whatever might be its religious or educational foundations—however great its material prosperity, it forfeited its title to civilisation when the hand of Justice was unable to seize upon the perpetrators of such crimes as this. It was not the mere circumstance of the poor stained and blotted human life which was destroyed; but it was the appalling horrors which, in the midst of a thickly-inhabited suburb of a great city, surrounded this cruel, cowardly, revolting murder. If in this case the jury were unable to depend upon the testimony adduced, it would be their duty to acquit these prisoners without hesitation. If, on the other hand, they could not resist the conclusion that guilt had been brought home to them, the jury would do their duty to society and to God—to society which looked to them for protection, and to God who would one day demand at their hands and at the hands of all engaged in the dispensation of human justice, a strict account of their actions.

His HONOR, in summing up, said that before they could find the prisoners guilty the jury must be convinced, beyond the possibility of a doubt, that the death of the unfortunate woman was either caused by the prisoners together or by some or one of them, the others aiding and abetting. And they must find that the act was done with the intention of causing her death, or of inflicting grievous bodily harm upon her, or in an attempt by some one of them, or all of them, to commit a crime punishable by death or penal servitude. Those were the circumstances which it was necessary for the Crown to make out before the jury could find a verdict of guilty. The deceased had been a widow eight or nine years, and before the death of her husband had given way to habits of intemperance. After his death she indulged more and more, until at length she became an habitual drunkard. On Christmas night, at about half-past 9 o'clock, according to the evidence for the Crown, she went to Braun's public-house, and purchased some rum, and was taking it away when some noise attracted Braun's attention, and he observed a number of young people about her. She afterwards proceeded along to Mount Carmel and there a number of young men gathered round her. Two persons were seen in her company, one of whom left her, and one accompanied her to that spot, the others being gathered in the immediate neighbourhood. How far off they stood, and whether in groups or pairs, was not very clear, but a number of persons were in the vicinity. Whilst there the woman was outraged and one of her assailants knocked her down, according to one witness; and, according to another witness, one of the other persons struck the woman in the mouth; and yet another swore that she was struck on the cheek. She cried out on being subjected to this violence, and the next morning her dead body was discovered there. His Honor then proceeded to read over portions of the evidence, and to comment on portions of it. He pointed out that the jury must be satisfied that some of the injuries inflicted on her had caused death. There were no outward marks to account for the death, but inside the skull there was a clot of congested blood. The evidence showed that habits of habitual intoxication injured the organs of the body, but the jury must find whether or not this extravasated blood arose from something done by some of the prisoners, or whether it was the result or not of a fall. It would have been more satisfactory if the doctors had shown where the ruptured brain was situated. Was that injury brought about by something done on that night by all or some or one of the prisoners, because if not there would be an end of the case. The learned Judge then dealt with the evidence brought against the prisoner Thornton. The only evidence against him was that of Frances Logan, who swore to his presence that night, together with Conway, Smith, and Hourigan. Mrs. Logan was not a person of immoral character, but if her evidence differed on different occasions, or if her manner was unsatisfactory, then the jury would be able to judge what weight they attached to her contradictions. She was at Windsor for a time, and while there was alleged to have written letters to one Mr. Hughes in Sydney. The letters were before them, and it would require a person of extraordinary ability to copy the handwriting, as she had done, in the Court; but, independently of the handwriting, they would find no difficulty in arriving at the authorship. There was nothing in the letters to militate against these prisoners. She was asked whether someone's initials were not engraved on her arm, and denied it, but would not allow her arm to be seen. One of the prisoners was not mentioned by her at previous examinations, but she was not then asked about him; at this trial she gives testimony that he was present at the outrage. She stated at first that she was away about 10 minutes for the police; now she says it was about three hours, and that when she went back about 1 o'clock the woman was standing, whereas in her former evidence she said the woman was lying down. He did not feel justified in going through the other conflicting evidence. She was the only person who criminated Thornton, and there was no other witness to prove he was there. His Honor then read extracts from her evidence relating to the prisoner Thornton, and if they did not believe her they could not believe that Thornton was present. There were many contradictions in the evidence as to what occurred at Thornton's home that night. Then there was the visit of Hughes to Mrs. Logan, and the question had been asked, why should he have gone to see her in reference to this matter before any inquiry? It was, however, their duty to give the prisoner the benefit of any doubt arising from this and other circumstances. He had now done with Thornton. Then came Conway, but Logan's testimony had not charged him with doing anything. He was merely there. Suppose persons are met together for purposes of highway robbery, and the robbery takes place, they are all aiding and assisting. But on the occasion of this crime a woman went out, and was waylaid by young people. Then she went to Mount Carmel, and is followed, then a crowd of young men collected, not touching her, not pulling her about. They were gathered together, and because the crime was committed then, the mere fact of their being there would not make them liable. There must be something more than the fact of their being there; they must be shown to be aiding and abetting. The evidence against Foley was that of Logan, Byles, and Spraggs, and there was the prisoner's own admission; and the evidence against Hourigan and Fahey was that of the accomplice; but he would advise them not to accept that evidence unless it was corroborated; but the only other evidence against Hourigan was that of Logan. In Fahey's case there was his own statement to the arresting constable, and the evidence of the informer. His Honor then read extracts from the evidence, and also Hourigan's depositions taken as a witness at the inquest; and after again explaining that the jury must be satisfied as to the cause of death, and that it arose from the act of one or more of the prisoners, he left the case in their hands.

The jury retired at 20 minutes past 6 o'clock, and after an absence of 10 minutes returned into court.

On being asked the usual question,

The foreman said: "The jury have unanimously agreed that the evidence is so unreliable that they do not feel justified in convicting any of the prisoners of the charge."

A rider was added, thanking the sheriff and officials for their courtesy during the time the jurors had been locked up.

His HONOR asked if there was any other charge against the prisoners.

Mr. Foster asked that the prisoners Foley, Hourigan and Fahey should be remanded till it was ascertained whether the Attorney-General would proceed against them on another charge. Thornton and Conway were discharged.

The finding of the jury was received with loud applause, which the officers of the Court had difficulty in suppressing.

POLICE.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Mr. Crane, S.M., sat in the Charge Court yesterday.

David M'Pherson, 38, a bootmaker, was charged with having stolen the sum of £3 15s. and a gold ring, valued in all at £6, the property of Patrick M'Donnell. It appeared that the prisoner, being in straitened circumstances, went to the prosecutor with the view of obtaining employment. The latter allowed him to live at his house for a few days, and the prisoner stole the money and ring. He was sentenced to be imprisoned for a period of six months.

David Cleary, 31, a labourer, and Michael Doran, 20, a dealer, were charged with having assaulted one Thomas Hayes with intent to rob him. The evidence for the prosecution went to show that at about a quarter-past 7 o'clock on Saturday night, the prosecutor was standing at the corner of Sussex and Goulburn streets, when he was accosted by the two prisoners. Doran struck him violently in the face and knocked him down, and they both endeavoured to rifle his pockets. They were, however, prevented from carrying out their object by the arrival of Constables Barnett and Roach, who arrested the prisoners. They were committed for trial.

John Randle and George Brown were charged with having frequented Hyde Park with intent to commit a felony. Detective Philip Williams deposed that he was in Hyde Park on Sunday morning at a quarter past 2 o'clock, in company with Detective O'Sullivan. He was resting on a seat near Liverpool-street situated on a side-walk. He saw the two prisoners coming from the direction of Stanley-street. They went to an old man who was lying on the seat next to the one on which he was. They stopped and looked at the man, and they then walked up to the seat where he (Detective Williams) was. He raised his head, and Randle recognising him, sang out to Brown, "Look out," and ran in the direction of Oxford-street. Detective O'Sullivan gave chase and caught the prisoner and brought him back. They then took the prisoners to the Central Police station. Both detectives gave the prisoners a very bad character, stating that they were the constant companions of thieves and burglars of the worst class when they were out of gaol, and that they had been convicted numerous times. The prisoners were both sent to gaol for six months.

James Cox alias Miller, 19, was sent to gaol for two months for having no visible lawful means of support.

REDFERN POLICE COURT.

Yesterday Mr. O'Malley Clarke, S.M., presided and dealt with 35 small debts cases.

William Boyce (18) was charged with unlawfully assaulting Ada Spraggs on the 9th instant. Constables Payne and Millett gave evidence of the arrest, and stated that prosecutrix's lip was cut and her nose bleeding when they saw her, and she was not drunk. Ada Spraggs stated she lived in George-street, Waterloo; she had given evidence in the Waterloo outrage case against some of the prisoner's companions; shortly after 12 o'clock on Sunday morning last she was standing at the corner of M'Evoy-street and Botany-road with Frances Logan, waiting for the tram, when prisoner, who was standing by, saw her, and said "There's Ada Spraggs, the —— cow, who put our mates away;" witness replied, when prisoner said "Hold your —— tongue or I'll knock you," and immediately after came up and struck her a heavy blow in the face with his fist. By prisoner: I did not first say to Mrs. Logan "There's Boyce, we ought to have had him in the Waterloo affair with his mates." Frances Logan gave corroborative evidence. For the defence Richard Hyde stated that he saw the whole occurrence; it commenced by Miss Spraggs saying to her companion, Frances Logan, "Here's Boyce, we ought to have had him in the lot;" witness did not see prisoner strike prosecutrix, but would not swear that he didn't. Mr. Clarke said there could be no doubt a most cowardly assault had been committed, and one which was further aggravated by the circumstances. It was fortunate for the prisoner he had no previous convictions against him; he should sentence prisoner to be imprisoned for four months with hard labour. Prisoner was then brought up on a second charge of having used indecent language at the same time and place. Frances Logan stated that when she saw prisoner threatening Ada Spraggs she called out to her to go for a policeman, when prisoner replied, using the language complained of. Ada Spraggs corroborated, and Mr. Clarke imposed a fine of £5, or three months gaol, the sentence to be cumulative on the former one.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Mr. Addison, S.M., presided in the Charge Court yesterday.

A number of drunkards were dealt with.

Alfred King was fined 20s. for riotous behaviour in Harrington-lane. Arthur Lambert was fined 40s., and Thomas Fay 20s., for a similar offence.

Sarah Manning, fined 10s. for drunkenness, was further fined 40s. for using indecent language.

John Makin was fined 20s. for using insulting language.

Denis O'Sullivan, charged with committing a nuisance on a Waverley tram on Saturday last, was fined £5, or two months.

Bridget Docking and Mary Hickey were charged with having stolen some gold rings, a gold chain, some collar studs, and other similar articles, valued at £6, the property of Matilda Tobin. Mr. Cooke appeared for the defence. Evidence was given to the effect that the prisoners had come to the shop of prosecutrix to hire a room, and waited there about an hour and a-half. Immediately after they went out Mrs. Tobin missed her property, which had been in a bag near where the prisoners sat. Mrs. Tobin was absent from them several times. She saw the jewellery safe in the bag about two hours before the prisoners came; only one other person had been there after that besides the prisoners, and the prosecutrix was in view of this person all the time she was in the place. Mrs. Tobin found the stone of her brooch on the floor. The prisoner Hickey engaged the room, but did not come back again. Docking came back about a week after. Hickey's boxes had been searched, but none of the property was found in them; nor had any trace of it been found in the pawnshops. The prisoners were then sworn, and gave their version of the affair. They stated that there had been another woman in the room besides them, that Mrs. Tobin had gone out of the room for some time, and that Mrs. Tobin told Docking that she had sold the jewellery to pay the rent; both denied having any knowledge of the bag or of the robbery; Hickey had not positively engaged the room. His Worship considered the charge sustained, and sent the prisoners to gaol for one month each.

Mr. Marsh presided in the Summons Court, and disposed of a number of cases under the transit bylaws.

The P. and O. Company have now "completed the circle" by the establishment of a special monthly steamer from Bombay direct to Marseilles, and thence to London. This, of course, is in addition to the usual weekly service to and from the East, and will now give passengers to and from the colonies the choice of four routes—i.e., Brindisi, Venice, Marseilles, or London. This arrangement will give an opportunity for visitors to the old country to break their journey by a sojourn in the Riviera, and to proceed thence to London, via Marseilles, by one of the company's large steamers, thus avoiding the tedium of a long railway journey, which is the great drawback to the Continental route.

The barque Wenona left Auckland on the 1st instant for Mercury Bay, where she is to load a cargo of timber for this port.

The Messageries Maritimes Company's steamer Melbourne, which left Melbourne on the 2nd February, passed Port Said, homeward bound, on the 4th instant, being five days in advance of contract time.

The steamer Alexandra left Cooktown at 10 a.m. on the 1st instant, Port Douglas at 5.50 p.m., and Cairns at 10.40 p.m. same day, Townsville at 0.30 p.m. on the 3rd, Bowen at 6 a.m. on the 4th, Mackay at 5.40 p.m. the same day, Keppel Bay at 5 p.m. on the 5th, Brisbane at 10.45 a.m. on the 8th, passed Smoky Cape at noon on the 9th, Seal Rocks at 7.30 p.m., and arrived at the company's wharf at 4.45 a.m. on the 10th. She had light easterly winds to South Solitary, from there light S.W. and N.W. winds, with calms, to arrival.

The steamship Salazie, of the Messageries line, arrived yesterday from Noumea with mails, passengers, and cargo. She left on the 7th instant at 11 a.m., and had a fine weather passage across. She entered the Heads at 1 p.m., and came to an anchor in Watson's Bay, where she had to remain until half-past 3 awaiting the arrival of the port health officer. After coming up the bay Mr. Bedford, the pilot in charge, had considerable difficulty in berthing her, owing to the tug steamer in attendance being unable to move her against the strong wind that was blowing. In consequence of this the Salazie had to sheer off again and go down towards Neutral Bay, in order to get in position for another attempt to get alongside. This was successful, but the ship was not berthed until after 6 o'clock.

H.M.S. Swinger, which is now at Adelaide on her way from Plymouth to Sydney, is commanded by Lieutenant Marox. Her armament consists of two 64-pounders, two 20-pounders, and two machine guns.

The barque Ceder was towed from the stream to Dibbs' Wharf yesterday; the steamer Cairngorm was taken from the Central Wharf to Mort's Dock; and the steamer Glenmavis was berthed at the Central Wharf.

The barque Kassa, laden with produce, left Dunedin on the 19th ultimo, and experienced variable winds until clearing Cook Straits on the 29th. Fine weather and variable winds continued until the passage was about half completed, when fresh northerly winds set in and carried the barque right up to the coast. Sydney Heads were made on Saturday last, but, owing to the current and the wind falling light, the Kassa got away to the southward. At 1 p.m. yesterday she was picked up by the Commodore, and towed to an anchorage below Garden Island, which was reached at 6 p.m.

H.M.S. Nelson, from Hobart to Sydney, passed Green Cape at 3 p.m. yesterday.

There are eight coasting vessels bar bound at Nambuccra, viz., Lady of Lorne, Theresa, Helena Davis, Eliza Allen, Magic, Dollar Bird, Sea Nymph, and Queen.

The Pacific Mail Company's R.M.S. City of Sydney arrived at Auckland last night.

The steamship Gulf of Carpentaria, hence to London, via Melbourne, arrived at the latter port yesterday.

The steamer Derwent left Rockhampton on the 4th instant at 2.30 p.m., Maryborough on the 6th instant at 7.30 a.m., Brisbane on the 8th at 1 p.m.; cleared the river at 2 p.m., rounded Cape Moreton at 5 p.m., passed Point Danger at 10.30 p.m., South Solitary on the 9th at 9.15 p.m., Smoky Cape at 0.15 p.m., Seal Rocks at 8 p.m., and Port Stephens at 10 p.m.; entered Sydney Heads on the 10th at 4.15 a.m., and arrived alongside the wharf at 7.30 a.m. The Derwent experienced S.E. and E. winds to Smoky Cape; thence to arrival N.E. to N. winds and thick fog, in consequence of which the ship was detained.

The Union Steamship Company's steamer Wairarapa, Captain H. W. H. Chatfield, arrived alongside the company's wharf at half-past 12 yesterday. She left Dunedin, N. Z., at 3 p.m. on the 28th ultimo, called at Lyttelton on the 29th, Wellington on the 1st instant, Napier on the 2nd, Gisborne on the 3rd, reaching Auckland at 11 a.m. on the 4th; sailed again at 6 p.m. on the 5th, arriving at Russell at 6 a.m. on the 6th; coaled ship, and left for Sydney at 7 p.m. Experienced light variable winds and smooth sea on the passage across. She entered Port Jackson Heads at noon. On Saturday morning last, at 2 a.m., Mr. W. R. Thompson, a saloon passenger, belonging to South Australia (who had been suffering previous to his embarking at Auckland from the effects of sunstroke) was found dead in his bed. His remains were committed to the deep at 10.30 a.m., the burial service being read by the Rev. J. C. M'Donald.

At a special general meeting of the members of the Sydney Permanent Freehold Land and Building Society, held in the Temperance Hall this evening, a resolution was carried to the effect that holders of contributing shares shall, in lieu of such shares, be allowed the option of taking one paid-up share for every £20 standing to their credit on the 30th June, 1884, on payment of a premium of £5 per share, the new paid-up shares to participate in the next bonus. Details in connection therewith were also agreed to.

In the Import markets business generally is quiet, with few transactions of a speculative character. The flour trade is confined to trade lines at the low range of prices lately quoted. Some good business has been done in tea, including 500 half-chests and 950 boxes new season's at 41s. and 11s. 9d. respectively; 80 half-chests at 65s.; and 2000 half-chests old season's at a price withheld, the latter line probably for export. In dried fruits, currants are in moderate request at 5d.; elemes in heavy stock and prices low; shipments advised, however, are but light. The English market was firm at latest at from 28s. to 31s. per cwt. for good samples. In fish tinned salmon is moving at 7s. to 7s. 3d.; good being sold at 5¾d; for other fish the demand is only moderate, and late prices still rule. English advices mention a slight decline in the value of sardines, but it was expected that prices would soon recover. Although exports of salt advised are in excess of those for the previous month, they are below the average—a fact that must tend to give a strength to prices here—the latest transactions, indeed, showing a firmer market. In brewers' goods we note rather more business in hops, but prices keep very low; colonial sold to-day at 9d. to 1s. 2d., according to quality; a small line of English taken at a full figure. English malt in five to ten tank lots is selling at 10s., parcels to arrive moving at a lower figure. In liquors, we note a fairly good trade demand for bottled beers, and sales of Burke's ale and stout and of Flensburg's lager beer are noted; Pig stout is scarce, and up to 10s. 6d. is now quoted. Dagger stout placed at agents' prices. In spirits we hear of business in Hennessy's three star brandy at 46s. 6d.; a line of Bisquit Dubouche, for export, was taken at agents' figures. In wines, some good lines of Vergnaud claret have been moved off. A parcel of China oil was quitted at a price withheld; in other oils we hear of no sales of importance, and prices are unchanged. In metals we do not hear of any considerable sales, the market having an easier tone. In their trade review of January 24 Messrs. N. F. Robarts and Co. report a decline for the month of 2s. 6d. to 5s. per ton on galvanised iron, with a good trade. In the face of the reported condition of our wire market, we can hardly understand the statement that a better demand was springing up in England for New South Wales, coupled with the hope that stocks in the colony were at last decreasing. This is no doubt the case, but the prices here are the subject of almost universal dissatisfaction. The supply of cement is still barely equal to requirements, and prices are maintained; over 20,000 barrels are advised as shipped for the month, but the excessive demands for freight for this article have sent up the price 1s. per barrel, 4s. 6d. per barrel being quoted for sail and 5s. 6d. per barrel for steamer. Our otherwise low market for slates will not be improved by the fact that the English quarries had issued new lists with reduced prices on January 1. There was not a large supply of forage or produce at the Darling Harbour market this morning. The market was well attended, and satisfactory prices were realised. Wheaten and oaten hay in bales 5s. 4d., in bundles 5s. 1d. per cwt.; wheaten hay, in bundle, 4s. 8d. to 5s. 1d. per cwt.; oaten chaff, 5s. 5d. to 5s. 10d.; straw chaff, 3s. 5d. to 3s. 8d. per cwt.; rye straw, in bundle, 3s.; clean straw in bale 2s. 7d., in bundle 2s. 6d. to 2s. 10d. per cwt.; lucerne, in truss, green 5s. 7d.; brown 3s. 6d. per cwt.; pumpkins, 1s. 7d. to 5s. per dozen; oaten hay, in bundles, 4s. 2d. to 5s. 8d., and one lot at 6s.; in bales, 4s. 11d. to 5s.; in truss, 4s. 6d., and in sheaves 4s. 9d. per cwt. The sales along the wharfs were well attended. There was a good supply of Hunter River lucerne forward; green sold at 90s. to 100s. per ton, brown hay, from 60s. to 80s. per ton; maize, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 9d.; feed and seed oats, 3s. to 3s. 6d.; Cape barley, 3s. 9d. per bushel; Victorian oaten chaff, £4 15s. to £5 19s.; Warrnambool potatoes, £3 10s.; Melbourne onions, £3 10s. to £3 15s. per ton; beeswax, 8d. to 10d.; honey, 5½d.; lard, 5d. to 8d.; ham, 1s. to 1s. 1d.; bacon, 8d. to 10d.; cheese, 5d. to 8d., and butter 1s. 9d. per lb.; eggs, 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d. per dozen. Messrs. Brunker and Wolfe disposed of a quantity of lucerne at auction, the prices realised being: Green, from 90s. to 101s.; brown hay, from 66s. to 80s. per ton.

Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, held their weekly wool sale to-day, and since their last sale have sold privately and by auction 846 bales. The slackness in the biddings for faulty lots continues. Cablegrams from England respecting these descriptions continue unfavourable. All good lines, both washed and greasy, still sell at late ruling rates. Among the principal lots sold were:—Greasy: DT, 24 at 7d.; ○ over H, 11 at 7¾d.; GF over W, 13 at 7¾d.; FU in diamond, 33 at 8d.; JW, 12 at 8¼d.; T&GB, 11 at 8d.; G in circle, 11 at 9d. Fleece: JOH, 133 at 16¼d.; J, Crisp over Jimmenbuan, 88 at 13¼d.; BB over M, 81 at 14¼d.; Stroke over JR, 33 at 13¼d.; RE over K, 46 at 14d.; JT over Cobbin, 13 at 13¼d. Scoured: SMP Company, 64 at 9¼d. to 15¼d.; AO&Co. over Mulyie, at 10d. to 15½d.; FK over Dundee, 13¾d. to 18¾d. Sheepskins ruled rather firmer, especially good full woolled lots.

The Australian Mortgage, Land, and Finance Company, Limited, have received the following telegram from Messrs. Helmuth Schwartze and Co., London, dated 4th instant:—

"Wool.—The sales progress without quotable change. With the exception of fine crossbreds prices are on the average ½d. to 1d. lower than at the close of last series. 210,000 bales have been catalogued to date."

The New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Limited, have received the following London produce telegram, dated March 7:—

"Wool: Market unchanged, except short staple merino scoured, which have declined ½d. to 1d. per lb. Fine greasy crossbred, market firmer. Seedy and burry wools are neglected. Up to date 170,000 bales have been sold. Wheat: Market quiet. Adelaide is worth 45s. 6d., and New Zealand is worth 41s. per 496lb. Tallow: Market firmer. Mutton, 42s. 6d., and beef, 39s. per cwt. Leather: Market unchanged. Copper: Market is weak. Wallaroo is worth £63 2s. 6d.; Burra, £62 2s. 6d. per ton. Tin: The market is better. Fine Australian in warehouse is worth £82 10s. per ton. Mother-o'-pearl Shell: Market unchanged. Copra: Market quiet. Quotation, £19 10s. per ton. New Zealand Hemp: Market quiet. Fine worth £28. The finer qualities are in good demand."

At a special meeting of the committee of the Chamber of Commerce to-day it was resolved to convene a general meeting, to be held on the 17th instant, to consider the following resolution:—"That in the opinion of this Chamber no extension of the railway for goods traffic into the city will be acceptable unless in conjunction with some comprehensive scheme for the resumption of the water frontages and the extension and improvement of the wharfage accommodation."

By the incoming mail steamship we have received London files to the 25th January. At the close there was a rather better demand for money; 2½ per cent. was quoted for three months' bank bills. Half a million in gold had been withdrawn from the bank. Writing on the 19th, the Economist says, with regard to the withdrawal of £300,000 in gold from the Bank for Australia it is to be remarked that for the past two years Australia had been retaining a large part of her gold production; yet the Australian banks had lost money, and had increased their advances extensively. They were paying high terms for deposits, and found borrowers to any extent ready to pay them from 8 to 10 per cent. The result was, that their "selling" rate of exchange rose from ¼, ½, up to ¾ per cent. premium, in their desire to find purchasers there for bills payable here. Altogether, the English market did not understand the operation, and was therefore rather afraid of it. Closing quotations for bank stocks were:—Australasia, 89-91; English, Scottish, and Australian, 33-34; London Chartered of Australia, 24½-25½; New South Wales, 67-69; New Zealand, 28-29; Oriental Bank Corporation, 12-13; Queensland National, 12-12½; Union of Australia, 76-78. Shipments to the colonies for the month ended January 23 amounted to £2,028,400, a decrease of £306,500 on the figure for the preceding month. To Sydney the value was £768,700, an increase of £700; to Queensland £154,000, a decrease of £84,700, all other colonies exhibiting a decrease. To Sydney the shipments included drapery, £296,200; leather and saddlery, £53,180; rails and general machinery, £145,300; books, paper, and stationery, £19,332; gunpowder, 1859 cwt; hardware cutlery, £28,100; galvanised iron, 1130 tons; sheet lead, 219 tons; linseed oil, 34,710 gallons; cement, 20,710 barrels; tobacco, 90,100 lb.; brandy in bulk, 10,020 gallons, in case 8400 gallons; rum, 47,080 gallons; geneva, 10,120 gallons; British spirits in bulk, 10,590 gallons; in case, 15,540 gallons; red wine, 2000 gallons; white, 6130 gallons; beer, bulk, 2058 barrels; glass, 1663 barrels; malt, 1860 quarters; hops, 10cwt.; sardines, £1360; white salt, 547 tons; candles, 2042cwt.; raisins, 246cwt.; currants, 2424cwt.

From Messrs. N. F. Robarts' London Trade Review for January 24 we extract the following:—

"Steam freights continue very unremunerative, and a large number of vessels are being either run at a loss or laid up. This is partly caused by the very small export of grain from America this season. Freights to Australia have continued low for weight, though an advance of 1s. per cask has been established on cement to Sydney, owing to the large quantities going forward. Rough measurement by cargo steamers is rather higher, but weight is scarce, and low rates prevail. A large number of steamers are advertised to sail during the next three weeks, and charterers seem likely to lose money. The Anglo-Australasian Steam Navigation Company have announced that they will in future load two steamers monthly."

The following Customs' duties were received on Monday:—

Spirits, £1327 12s. 1d.; wine (still), £29 3s. 11d.; ditto (sparkling), £3; ale, porter, and beer (in bottle), £335 17s.; tobacco (unmanufactured), £83 3s.; tea, £21 13s. 9d.; sugar (unrefined), £199 6s.; molasses, £13 8s. 5d.; dried fruits, £295 14s.; nuts, £3 5s. 7d.; malt, £4 6s. 6d.; hops, £168 18s.; specific duty, £1179 18s.; Chinese restriction, £10; fisheries royalty, 5s.; pilotage, £36 6s.; harbour and light dues, £29 12s. 8d.; total, £3747 9s. 10d.

FAT STOCK MARKET.

At the Homebush fat stock sales, to-day, 930 head of cattle were forward. Prices were without change. The best lot of bullocks averaged £8 17s. 6d.; others, from £4 16s. 9d.; cows at proportionate rates. 10,682 sheep were yarded. There was very little alteration in values, second qualities perhaps being in better demand. Extra prime crossbreds sold at 19s. 9d. The best lot of wethers averaged 13s. to 13s. 6d., others selling from 6s. 6d. The following sales were reported:—By Messrs. Pitt, Son, and Badgery.—49 bullocks (W. B. Smith), £8 17s. 6d.; 132 ditto (J. T. Redman), £4 16s. 9d.; 17 cows (ditto), £5 6s. 3d.; 3 bullocks (H. E. Kater), £7 3s.; 8 cows (ditto), £4 6s.; 270 wethers (H. Morgan), 13s. to 13s. 6d.; 1800 ditto (A. A. Company), 10s. 6d. to 10s. 11d.; 1194 ditto (A. Gibson), 10s. 5d.; 150 ditto (Walhollow), 9s. 8d.; 1000 ditto (J. The Sydney Morning Herald.

TUESDAY, MARCH 11, 1884.

The report of the Western Pacific Commission—of which we now get a fuller statement than we had before—will not be looked upon in Australia as an entirely satisfactory document. This is no matter of surprise considering that no one representing Australian interests had a place on the Commission. Sir ARTHUR GORDON, as is well known, is intensely anti-colonial in his prepossessions, and the two naval commanders naturally, during the term of their office, looked at the South Sea question from an Imperial point of view. On the Commission, therefore, the natives were well represented, and the mother country was well represented, but the Australians had no representation at all. Indeed, at the time the Commission was appointed the mother country scarcely seems to have attained to the idea that there was an Australian side to the question. Since that date, however, the Intercolonial Convention has opened its eyes on that point, and it is now beginning to see that Australia has the greater interest in the matter.

Still, what the Commission proposes, though far short of what is needed, is a move in the right direction. It proposes to detach the High Commissionership altogether from the Government of any other colony, and make it a separate jurisdiction. This of itself will be a great improvement. It does not make a "Crown colony of a severe type" of the Western Pacific; but it has in it the germ of such a policy. There is discernible the beginning of a Government for this area of territory considered as one whole. This is a movement, therefore, along the right lines, and so long as things are developing naturally and in a right direction we need not be impatient.

It is proposed that the seat of Government shall be in New Guinea. For immediate practical purposes it would be more convenient if it were located at Brisbane, Sydney, or Melbourne; but at the same time there is an advantage in the High Commissioner's holding his court within the area of his own territory.

Nor is there any objection to placing the labour trade entirely under the control of the British Government, so far as the recruiting is concerned. To carry out that control, it will be absolutely necessary that the High Commissioner should exercise an authority of some sort over the islands from which labourers are taken. He will find it necessary to enter into some negotiations with the tribal authorities in those islands, and that will greatly facilitate his taking the tribal chiefs into his pay and making them responsible for carrying out his instructions. We are told that authority is to be conferred on the High Commissioner for the punishment of native outrages on the whites, but at the same time no absolute sovereignty is to be assumed. We are not particular about words, so long as what is done is satisfactory. Such a degree of government by the High Commissioner as will protect white men against black men, and black men against white men, will do very well for a beginning. It is more than we have had yet, and it will naturally prepare the way for something more definite. If the mother country will establish this new Government in the Western Pacific, and make it a reality, they may call it by what name they please. It will be the interest of the colonies to support the movement. The sum of £10,000 has been named as for the present a satisfactory Australian contribution. It will be a wise thing for each colony to satisfy the timid apprehensions of the Imperial Government by making at once a special appropriation of its proportion of the amount. We shall be entitled, not only to watch the expenditure, and express from time to time an opinion upon it, but to watch also what we get for the money. There is no necessity to quarrel about any share in the administration. If we share in the expense, we shall have a potent voice.

Our telegrams also mention that some months ago the German Government had complained of the improprieties committed by Queensland labour vessels. This reminds us of the old proverb of the pot calling the kettle black, for, unless we are very much misinformed, the transactions of some of the vessels engaged in German interests to supply labour to Samoa are quite as shady as anything charged against the Queenslanders, and the new HIGH COMMISSIONER will soon find out that, if he is going to do complete justice to the blacks, he will have to talk a little German.

Another point of great interest to us in connection with convention business is the statement that the French Government does not believe that we are at all in earnest in our protest against being smothered with French rascality. This is surely somewhat extraordinary. The French would be very much astonished if we were to send to them an official communication to the effect that they were not at all in earnest in wishing to get rid of their criminals. We are not likely to send such a communication, because we know that they are very much in earnest. They are at their wits' end to know what to do with the rascality that has developed itself within their borders, and they are anxious to put the distance of half the world between them and France. But if they are so extremely anxious to get their relapsed criminals safely away where they will never come back again, cannot they understand that we are just as anxious not to have them? Why should they suppose that we are willing to receive with open arms men whom they despatch in fetters and under a strong guard? There is nothing in the New Caledonian discipline that we have ever heard of of a reformatory character, nor have we ever understood that the French themselves pretend that the voyage out in a crowded transport ship, or the convict life in the island, is adapted to increase the personal virtue of the men who in France have twice fallen into crime. When these men come from New Caledonia to Australia they are not morally better than when they were ejected from France as intolerable. Why should the French suppose that we are totally indifferent to their landing here? Anyhow, if the difficulty with France is that the Government does not believe in our repugnance to recidivistes, it will force us to take such steps as will conquer that disbelief. How far we shall have to go in that direction will depend upon France, and the strength of the incredulity we meet with. There is no wish in Australia to be unfriendly to France, or to adopt unnecessarily strong measures to begin with; but whatever necessity is laid upon us we shall have to meet, even if need be to the cutting off of all connection between Australia and New Caledonia. It is a great pity that the French Government should entertain erroneous opinions as to Australian sentiment in this matter, and if it is well served in this part of the world it has means of informing itself as to the true state of affairs. It ought not to be in the dark, and if it is not, it ought not to pretend to be.

Mr. GEORGE COPPIN has been lately visiting this colony, and has carried back with him to Victoria a very strong impression that a counterpart of the nautical school-ship Vernon would be an excellent institution there. He has laboured to impress Mr. SERVICE with the same idea, and has succeeded in enlisting in his favour an influential section of the Victorian press, as well as sundry newspaper correspondents, who have been freely ventilating the subject in the Victorian journals. It has been the habit of Judges and magistrates in this colony for some time back to complain that we have no such institution as a juvenile reformatory, and they have deplored from time to time the fact of their being unable to deal with young criminals as they would wish. The adroitness with which many of them have got out of the difficulty is at least creditable to their sagacity. In the event of a conviction being secured against a youthful delinquent, they have, after expressing regret that they had no alternative but to imprison, and thus subject the recipient of the sentence to the chance of further contamination by being herded with hardened criminals, contented themselves with inflicting a nominal sentence of a few hours' incarceration in a lockup, and at the same time suggested to the police the propriety of re-arresting when the sentence was complete and bringing up the prisoner as a vagrant, when they duly ordered him to be sent on board the Vernon. In what other light than that of a reformatory the Vernon is looked upon it would be hard to say. As a matter of fact it is nothing else, whatever it may be considered in the light of law. Mr. COPPIN and his friends have undertaken, for the defence of their own position, to contrast the results attained on board the Vernon with those at the reformatory at Ballarat, and it need hardly be said that from their standpoint the Vernon gets much the best of it. The cases, however, are hardly parallel. There are certain surroundings connected with a school-ship which neutralise its penal aspect, and this is not the case with a reformatory on shore. To escape from a floating prison is not such an easy matter as from one on land. Discipline and supervision can be more methodically carried out on a ship than in a barrack; and in a word, the conditions being dissimilar, a comparison of the two is not a fair one, if judged by actual results. The advocates of reformatories ashore say that as the lads when discharged have to earn their own living, it is as well to teach them how; and agriculture is one of those pursuits which not only opens up an illimitable field in a new country, but it is one in which the greatest dearth of labour is found. A lad trained on board a ship may contract nautical instincts, and very possibly a seafaring life would come naturally to him after his discharge; but training neglected juveniles for the sea is not economical if the country is to get the value of their services. On the other hand, the advocates of these school-ships assert that the secret of juvenile reform is to instil into the vagrant's mind respect for constituted authority, cheerful obedience, and at the same time self-confidence, illustrated by an all-round handiness, so to term it, which is gained by training on shipboard. In other respects the systems are identical, the object of both being to impress on the larrikin mind that for his own comfort it is better to live cleanly and respect authority than to set society at defiance. The main point, however, made by Mr. COPPIN and his friends in their advocacy of these school ships as against reformatories on shore lies in the fact that there is a certainty of keeping the youthful vagrant on a ship, whereas it is a doubtful matter on land. Commander EVANS, the principal of the Ballarat Reformatory, furnishes the following figures, which, to say the least, are not satisfactory. In 1879, he says, "out of 97 boys removed from Jika, a kindred institution, 33 absconded. In 1880, out of 136 admitted, no less than 59 absconded. In 1881, out of 162 there were 30 absconders, and in 1882 out of 167 there were 39." As far as we can learn there is no record of any boy absconding from the Vernon at all, notwithstanding the fact that they are frequently on shore. As most of them are recruited from the ranks of the city gamins, and are not only all familiar with the slums but have a large circle of vagrant acquaintances to seduce them away, it is remarkable that so few attempts are made to escape. This is not the case at Ballarat, despite the fact that few of the inmates of the Reformatory there belong to the locality.

The report of the Vernon last year states that out of 235 admitted, only 14 absconded, and these solely from their apprenticeship on shore, and not from the vessel. Several of them ran away from their apprenticeship merely to come back on board the ship. It is clear, therefore, that either the surroundings of a reformatory on shore do not suit the vagrant mind, or that surveillance is defective. Boys on board training ships to which the Vernon assimilates are perpetually guarded both night and day. When engaged in work either connected with the daily duty on shipboard, working at a trade, or in school, an officer is always present. At night, as they lie sleeping in their hammocks, an officer patrols the lower deck, and hence the boys are never left alone. It can easily be understood why indulgence in vicious propensities is almost impossible, and concurrent contamination reduced to a minimum. It would be difficult to perfect such a system in a reformatory on shore. Apart from this, the superintendent is the supreme authority, and outside any supervision of elective boards, being responsible alone to the Minister of his Department. It will be hence seen at a glance that the diversity of circumstances renders a contrast of results manifestly unfair. There is, however, this point to be considered in Mr. COPPIN's proposal. In self-defence Melbourne must depend upon a protective force of a nautical character. She has lately invested in a number of gunboats, and she has a floating battery to man. She can train and utilise her juvenile vagrant population if she chooses for essentially protective purposes. Already the mother country has given the example of utilising these waifs of society by placing them on training ships and manning her ships of war with them. If Mr. COPPIN's suggestion is carried out, the discarded Nelson, unfit for modern naval warfare, may be utilised as a training ship for the crews of the gunboats and the floating battery, the Cerberus. The larrikin has proved what material he possesses for offensive purposes, and by negative reasoning he may be equally effective for defensive, if he is only properly handled. This appears to be the strongest point in favour of Mr. COPPIN's scheme, and, odd to say, it seems, generally speaking, to have escaped attention.

The Parliamentary proceedings of last week were marked by a satisfactory improvement in the manner in which the Government is conducting its business through the Assembly. If the firmness which was shown in keeping the House sitting on Wednesday and Thursday until the small hours had been exhibited earlier in the session, the business paper would have indicated more progress than it has. Only the closest attention to the work in hand will enable the Government to get rid of it. The slightest dilatoriness on the part of those in whose charge is the chief business of the country adds greatly to the opposition that comes from their opponents, and the merest sign of weakness is seized upon and magnified by those whose desire is that the Government shall be prevented as much as possible from doing anything. Parliament has been sitting nearly five months—almost the length of an ordinary session—and so far as the Assembly is concerned, it has done little more than pass the second reading of the Land Bill. But, protracted as the debate was upon that bill, the second reading was passed as long ago as the 13th December, and from that day to this there has been no indication of when the bill will be proceeded with continuously in committee. It is not surprising, therefore, that there should have been some appearance of a withdrawal of support from the Government both inside and outside the House. Every effort must be made by the Government to prove its sincerity, and this can only be done by a determination to keep the House to its work. If obstruction on the left of the Speaker occupy the earlier portion of a sitting, the obstructionists must be made to understand that they will be kept in the House during the later hours, and until the night's business has been done. Method and a resolute attitude are just as indispensable in the conduct of Parliamentary business as in any other department of life; and if the Government will only make up its mind to do a certain amount of work each evening, or each week, its position will be materially strengthened, and its course of action made more satisfactory to all who are really interested in seeing the business of the country proceeded with in a proper manner. The late sittings of Wednesday and Thursday, irksome as they must have been to those members who, at such times, have to suffer for the misconduct of others, are understood to have created a favourable impression in the House, and have certainly led to considerable progress being made in the matter of the TREASURER's financial proposals, and in the consideration of the Estimates. A similar course this week would probably produce like results. At all events, it would show that the Government was earnest in the desire to get through the Estimates speedily, and proceed with the further consideration of the Land Bill as soon as possible. It would also entitle the Government to the support of every member of the Assembly who honestly wishes to see the Land Bill passed.

Another illustration of the helplessness to which the absence of local self-government has reduced the rural population of New South Wales is furnished by the township of Cobar. There are 3000 people collected there, and they send a message to the Government that the tanks on which they are dependent for drinking water are getting foul and the water undrinkable. Was there no power on the part of the people to take the necessary steps to keep from pollution a store of water so necessary to the township? A further piece of information is that a squatter seven miles off is willing to allow the people the use of his tank; but this will require a pump, a caretaker, and some drays to cart the water. The Government is immediately telegraphed to find funds for all three, and further to supply water gratis to all who say they cannot afford to buy it. Is Cobar so absolutely helpless that it cannot provide a pump, a caretaker, and a bullock-dray? Of the need of water there can be no question, but surely people might be trusted to look a little after their own interests. How can the Central Government, 500 miles away, be expected to exercise the necessary forethought for people who do not look ahead for themselves? It is to be hoped that the bill for extending municipal government over the whole settled portion of the colony is nearly ready, and that Parliament will be awakened to the necessity of putting a stop to this ignominious dependence on Government for local improvements.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE Mahdi's lieutenant, Osman Digna, maintains a defiant attitude, and positively refuses to comply with the demands of Major-General Graham for the dispersion of his forces. Another battle with Osman is therefore probable. Several influential Arab Sheiks have arrived at Suakim and tendered their submission to the British authorities. Gordon Pasha has reported that he will not be able to relieve Khartoum without the aid of a British force. Our cablegrams of this morning also announce the arrival of the brothers Redmond in Ireland after their Australian and American tour. Replying to an address of welcome at Queenstown, they referred to the success of their mission in these colonies.

THE English mail per P. and O. steamer Mirzapore was delivered from the General Post Office yesterday morning. We have received files of papers and English and other correspondence to the 25th January. In another column will be found extracts from the papers and our London correspondent's letter

THE Pacific Company's steamship City of Sydney, with the English mails, via San Francisco, arrived at Auckland last evening. She should arrive in Port Jackson on Friday night or Saturday morning. Amongst the City of Sydney's passengers is Hanlan, the champion sculler.

A CABINET meeting will be held to-day, and it is probable that the appointment of a permanent Minister of Public Instruction will be one of the subjects brought forward for consideration.

THERE are 20 questions on the business paper of the Legislative Assembly for to-day (Tuesday), followed by 10 notices of motion and 10 orders of the day. Notice No. 1, by Mr. O'Mara, is to the effect that a member who accepts office should not thereby vacate his seat. The next four notices are in the name of Mr. M'Elhone. The first for a select committee to inquire into Mr. Stuart's mineral conditional purchases; the next is for copies of the working plans of contract No. 2 of the Illawarra railway; the next is to delay calling for tenders for the said portion of the line until the report of the abovementioned select committee is to hand; the last of the four notices is for a select committee to report upon the various trial surveys of the railway between Sydney and Wollongong, and the nature of the country through which such trial surveys would pass. No. 6, by Mr. A. G. Taylor, is to the effect that no Minister of the Crown should conduct law cases except on behalf of the Crown. Mr. W. J. Fergusson has No. 7, in favour of having locality maps of all the principal goldfields and mineral-mining localities of the colony. No. 8, by Mr. Purves, is for leave to go into committee to consider the expediency of bringing in a bill to provide an annuity for the widow of the late Professor Badham. No. 9, by Mr. M'Elhone, for papers, &c., in connection with the post and telegraph office on the South Head-road. No. 10, by Mr. Targett, affirms that the patent law should be amended so as to permit registration for six months, on the payment of £1 1s. The orders of the day include nine second readings and the resumption of the debate on the question that children attending Public schools should not be required to state their religious belief.

WITH reference to the recent outbreak of scab we understand that the Hon. J. P. Abbott, Minister for Mines, has it in contemplation to appoint a commission to inquire into the circumstances of the American sheep passing through quarantine without the existence of the disease among them being detected.

A TELEGRAM has been received by the Colonial Secretary from the Agent-General stating that the steamship Belgravia sailed from London, on the 7th instant, for Sydney, with 872 emigrants.

WE understand that it has been decided by the Senate of the University to advertise in the colony and in England for a successor to the late Dr. Badham. Applications from persons in the colony will be received by the Registrar of the University, and those from persons in England by the Attorney-General, who will forward the applications received by him to the University Senate, and the Senate will make the appointment.

THE rumour which appeared in our issue of Friday, concerning proposed changes on the magisterial benches of the colony, in consequence of the appointment of Mr. T. K. Abbott as one of the metropolitan stipendiary magistrates, is confirmed. Mr. Leopold Yates, police magistrate at Armidale, has been appointed police magistrate at Maitland; Mr. T. A. Browne, police magistrate at Dubbo, is to go to Armidale; and Mr. W. S. Caswell, police magistrate at Wellington, is to go to Dubbo. The appointment to Wellington, and some other changes that will probably take place have not yet been made.

DURING the past two days the weather has been very sultry, yesterday being particularly oppressive, but the evenings have been comparatively cool. A fresh north-east wind blew yesterday up till 6 p.m., when there was a sudden change to the southward, with every indication of rain. Beyond two or three very light showers, however, the much-needed rain did not come. The sky throughout the night was obscured by clouds, and the wind freshening up to a strong breeze, gave some promise of a good rainfall.

THE cases concluded in the Banco Court yesterday were of very little public interest. In the action Edwards v. Jarman, which was a claim for £150, balance of account upon a building contract in connection with the erection of Beresford-chambers, Castlereagh-street, a verdict was given for the plaintiff for £30 13s. The action Kingsland v. Pooley was settled; and the action Simpson v. Brown, in which the plaintiff seeks to recover £10,000 for breach of agreement, in reference to an alleged partnership for the working of certain gravel beds in the Nepean River at Penrith, was commenced, and is likely to last over to-morrow. In the Jury Court the action Wright v. Kelly, in which plaintiff sought to recover £55, amount of stamp duty paid by him on the transfer of a run to defendant, a verdict was returned in favour of the latter. Mr. Justice Faucett concluded the hearing of the suit Murphy v. Cade, and declared that the plaintiff had no title to the two farms situated at Phil's Creek, near Cootamundra, which were in question; still he ruled that there was a charge in plaintiff's favour upon the property for the amounts he had advanced free of interest. His Honor gave plaintiff his costs of the suit, but reserved those of the preceding ejectment action until he should have read the affidavits connected therewith. His Honor then made a decree by consent in the petition suit M'Lean and another v. Hodges. The hearing of the suit M'Girr v. Kelly, in which the plaintiff seeks to have the defendant declared a trustee for him of certain conditional purchases near Parkes, was then commenced.

STEPS are being taken, which it is hoped will lead to some definite action on the part of the Government, with a view of facilitating the business of the District Court. At yesterday's sitting of the Court his Honor Judge Forbes said there were 123 or 124 remanets. He wanted to try and persuade the Minister for Justice to introduce into Parliament a short bill to enable District Court Judges to hold two Courts concurrently. A bill of that kind ought not to require much time to pass it through both Houses, and would not only keep down those wretched remanets, but would do away with the applications which were frequently made for costs for witnesses who had been in attendance for two days or three days, as the case might be, waiting for the case in which they were interested to be heard. The sitting of two Courts concurrently would not be found by counsel to be inconvenient, because if an advocate found that he was retained in cases which might be heard in two Courts he might apply for the transference of one of the cases, so that both would be heard in one Court.

MEN were employed yesterday by the City Corporation in distributing copies of the following circular to the occupants of all premises in the city and suburbs supplied with water:—"The Mayor of Sydney, in view of the present diminished quantity of water at Lachlan Swamp and at Botany, and to avoid the necessity for adopting stringent measures for limiting the supply to the citizens, would seriously urge the occupants of all premises supplied (whether by meter or otherwise) to be careful to prevent any unnecessary consumption or waste, and especially to abolish the use of 'plunge baths' until the existing drought has passed.—Town Hall, Sydney, 6th March, 1884."

A QUARTERLY meeting of the Sydney Municipal Council was held at the Town Hall yesterday. The Mayor occupied the chair, and there was a large attendance of aldermen. A large quantity of business was disposed of, particulars of which may be found in another column.

THERE was a very numerous attendance at the adjourned meeting of the Sydney School of Arts Debating Club last night. Mr. W. M. Fairlands, vice-president, occupied the chair. The question under discussion was: "That the execution of Charles I. was justifiable for the welfare of England." The debate throughout was animated and interesting. Upon being put to the meeting the motion was negatived by a large majority by both visitors and members. The next question given notice of relates to the nationalisation of land.

WORKING men and others interested are reminded that the first of Professor Anderson Stuart's lectures, on how to simplify the treatment of accidents, will be given at the Protestant Hall this evening.

THE committee of the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts, finding that the lectures on Saturday evening entail an expenditure for which no fund other than that of the library is available, have resolved to levy the small charge of 3d. in future, in order to enable a varied succession of lectures and elocutionary and illustrated readings to be maintained, as well as to form a fund for the renewal from time to time of the views by which the lectures are frequently illustrated. The lecture on Saturday evening next, by Mr. P. J. Holdsworth, will be on the specially interesting subject of Egypt.

LAST evening's sitting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church was shortened in order that all present might be afforded an opportunity of judging of the character of some of the tunes in the new hymnal—Church Praise—which it is proposed to introduce in place of that now in use. The musical illustrations were given by the united Presbyterian choirs, assisted by Mr. Sydney Moss, L.C.M., Mrs. Innes, Miss Thomson, and Mr. Thomson.

A MEETING of the Shipmasters' and Officers' Association was held last night at the rooms in Bridge-street. Captain Croker acted as chairman, and the following members were present:—Captain Lowry, Captain Springall, Messrs. Thomson, Stuart, Everill, and Pyke. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A letter was received from Captain M'Intosh with reference to the overworking of officers. It having been brought before the meeting that the officers of the vessels belonging to several steamship companies of Sydney are sailing under what is considered to be the standard rate of wages, a resolution was unanimously carried that the secretary should write to the companies in question asking their consideration of the matter. The secretary intimated that no answer had been received from the Marine Board with regard to the light and signal station on Norah Head. The small attendance of members came under discussion, accounts were passed, and, a vote of thanks having been accorded to the chairman, the meeting terminated.

THE annual meeting of the New South Wales Auxiliary to the Bible Society was held at the Masonic Hall, York-street, yesterday evening, but was not very largely attended. Sir G. Wigram Allen occupied the chair. The report and balance-sheet showed on the whole a satisfactory state of affairs, £1700 having been sent home as a free contribution to the parent society. A report was also read by the district secretary (Rev. R. T. Hills), detailing his visits to the various branches, and the condition he found them in. Very interesting addresses were delivered by the Very Rev. Archdeacon King, Rev. H. T. Robjohns, the agent from the parent society, and other gentlemen; and the usual resolutions were unanimously agreed to. A fuller report will appear in a future issue.

THE usual monthly meeting of the Burns Club was held on Friday evening in the club's room at the Protestant Hall, when there was a large attendance of members and their friends. The president elect, Mr. Andrew M'Credie, delivered an eloquent and interesting address, in which he explained the objects of the club, the intellectual improvement of the members by means of the study of the lives and writings of literary men of any nationality, the more particular study of the writings of Scotland's national poet Burns, and the annual celebration of his birth by means of the reunion of the members and their friends. Mr. M'Credie proceeded to sketch out the year's work, which will include papers on high-class subjects by the leading members of the club, with quarterly reunions, at which lady friends will assist with music, and congratulated the club on the accession of a number of new members, and the much more commodious and comfortable room that had been secured for its meetings.

A SPECIAL meeting, convened by the Democratic Alliance, was held last night, at Hyde Park, to consider the extension of the municipal franchise, as proposed in the bill now before Parliament. Mr. G. F. Garton presided. There was a large assemblage. Several speakers addressed the meeting, and urged that the franchise for the municipal election should be so extended as to place the personnel of the council and the Mayoral appointment more directly under the control of the people. The first resolution was moved by Mr. Flowers, and seconded by Mr. Lynch, as follows:—"That this meeting approve of the action of the Democratic Alliance in petitioning Parliament in support of Mr. Daniel O'Connor's bill, now before the House, for the further extension of the municipal franchise to a household suffrage." It was supported by Mr. O'Byrne and Mr. M'Evoy, and agreed to. The next resolution, moved by Mr. Miller, seconded by Mr. Stephens, and supported by Messrs. O'Sullivan and Brown, was to the effect that the petition above referred to should be handed to Mr. O'Connor for presentation to Parliament. The petition has been in course of signature for two days, and was signed by a large number at last night's meeting. It now bears about 1500 signatures.

AN advertisement has appeared occasionally in our columns inviting cultured persons of British birth, who are invalid and in need of assistance, to apply for relief to Mr. Robert Curtis, hon. secretary of the Oberlin Friendly Aid Institute, at 4, Lancaster Villas, Ocean-street, Woollahra. We learn from a circular forwarded to us that this institute was founded, and is supported, by a private gentleman, an invalid, out of sympathy for cultured fellow-sufferers, and for other cultured persons who, being in reduced circumstances through no vices of their own, are without proper means of support, and are unable to obtain a livelihood. The object of the institute is to render free friendly help, by means of small loans or allowances, by aids to employment, by gratuitous medical advice and medicine, and by personal counsel and sympathy, to cultured persons of British birth who are pulmonary invalids, and to others who are in need or who cannot, unassisted, obtain employment. The help is rendered without reference to the creed of the recipient, and without publicity; and it is promptly given after the application has been accepted. To encourage a spirit of mutual help and honourable independence, the recipients are invited and expected to repay the loans or allowances granted to them as soon as their circumstances shall have improved. Candidates for help are required to furnish a "confidential statement," certifying to their birth-place, degree of education, position, moral conduct, nature of disease, cause of need, &c.; and this statement should be supported by certificates of character from persons well acquainted with the applicant. The institute is conducted by a committee, assisted by a number of ladies and gentlemen, who visit and inquire into the needs of the various applicants.

SOME complaints have been made recently with regard to the quality of the rations supplied to the Permanent Artillery Force, and yesterday a reporter from this office visited Dawes Point Barracks to inspect the provisions supplied for the day. They were found to be good, and as far as could be ascertained the provisions are generally good, the only ground for objection being that sometimes the meat, after having been received from the contractor, goes bad, apparently in consequence of the hot weather, and the vegetables are sometimes not quite as they should be. But when this is the case the defective meat and vegetables are condemned, and a new supply is obtained. Under the contract for the ration supplies, when any portion of the daily rations is found to be bad or not according to agreement, there is power to obtain a new supply from some other source at the contractor's expense, and this, we are informed, is done. The rations are brought to the barracks at about half-past 7 o'clock each morning, and they are inspected by an officer. While that inspection is being made a man from each of the mess-rooms, known as cooks'-mates, are present, and they are asked if they have any complaints to make with regard to the rations. If they make a complaint of the condition of the meat, or of anything else, the officer, if he consider the complaint justifiable, condemns the meat, or whatever else is not what it ought to be. Then, if after the inspection anything should be found in an unsound condition before, in the ordinary course of events, sufficient time has elapsed to make it so, it can be changed, and, as is stated above, is changed. In the report of the officer of the day the inspection of the provisions before issue, and their quality, are distinctly stated.

A CORRESPONDENT, writing upon the subject of the Wolverine vote on the Estimates, considers that the volunteer corps in connection with the ship is receiving very scant courtesy. The members of the corps, it is pointed out, bear the cost of their uniforms, and there is no pay attached to the performance of their duties, and yet the programme for the Easter encampment does not include this corps, and the expense is not to be provided for the ordinary instruction. "Really," the correspondent remarks, "as a purely volunteer movement, the Wolverene vote ought to have a little more consideration."

THE annual session of the grand council in connection with the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia was commenced at the Protestant Hall, Castlereagh-street, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. A large number of representatives were present, and a good deal of general business was transacted. The sitting will be resumed to-day, and the session will probably terminate to-night. A report of the proceedings will appear in a future issue.

THE third annual picnic in connection with the Trade and Benefit Society of Amalgamated Plumbers, Galvanized Ironworkers, and Gasfitters of New South Wales was held yesterday at Contarf. A number of steamers conveyed the pleasure-seekers to the ground at various times during the day until about 1000 people were collected. Amusements, such as quoits, cricket, foot races, dancing, swinging, &c., were indulged in freely, and were kept up throughout the day notwithstanding the heat. The official luncheon was laid at the Clontarf Hotel, Mr. Jas. Johnston, the president of the society, occupying the chair. Messrs. J. Garrard and F. Abigail, M's.L.A., were present; also, Mr. W. M'Carthy, president of the Master Plumbers' Society, and other members thereof. After dinner, the usual toasts were proposed and honoured in an enthusiastic manner.

OUR attention has been drawn by a correspondent to the fact that the tolls are still being charged on the Glebe Island Abattoir Bridge, although on the 19th February a resolution was passed in the Assembly affirming that the tolls should be abolished forthwith. With reference to this we are informed that as the bridge has been leased for a term, which does not end until 31st December next, the Colonial Treasurer has submitted for the opinion of the Attorney-General the question whether, on the ground of the resolution passed in the Assembly, the lease can be terminated before it expires by effluxion of time. But, irrespective of this unavoidable cause of delay, it has been discovered that the resolution as it was adopted in the Assembly merely affirms that it is the opinion of the House that the tolls should be abolished forthwith. The resolution was passed without the usual addition, which would cause the opinion of the House to be communicated to his Excellency the Governor, and therefore there is nothing to cause executive authority to be given to the desire of the House as expressed in the resolution.

OF the Recidivistes Bill our Paris correspondent writes on January 25:—"A bill that has been passed by the Chamber of Deputies and referred to the Senate is likely to become a dead letter. This has been the case with the Divorce Bill, and the Recidivistes Bill has been threatened with the same fate. Bills in the Senate are like property in Chancery. They go in, and except in special cases where the Government screw is put on, no one can form a notion when they will come out again. Weeks have elapsed without our having any news of the Recidivistes Bill until within the last few days. Now we hear that the committee appointed to consider it is getting towards the end of its labours. Various modifications have been made in the text adopted by the Deputies, but these relate to minor points of French judicial practice, and do not affect the general scheme. The Minister of Marine has been requested by the committee to submit his views on the subject of the locality or localities to be selected for the 'relegation' of habitual criminals. It is possible that this statement may be of some interest. When the committee has done with the question of locality, it will consider how the transported criminals are to be employed in their new sphere of industry. Then a reporter will be named, and there will no longer be any excuse for delaying the public discussion. It may be assumed with tolerable certainty that the bill will pass and become law during the present year."

WE understand that shortly before the recent mail coach accident near Queanbeyan the Postmaster-General became impressed with the necessity for issuing directions to mail contractors with a view to reduce the risk of accident as much as possible, and a circular has been prepared stating that in future Mr. Trickett will not approve of any harness which does not provide breeching for the wheel horse or horses.

THE trial of the men for the Waterloo outrage was concluded at the Darlinghurst Court-house yesterday. The whole of the day was occupied with the addresses of counsel, the reply of the Attorney-General, and the summing-up of the learned Chief Justice. The jury retired to consider their verdict at 20 minutes past 6, but were absent for 10 minutes only. The foreman then reported—"The jury have unanimously agreed that the evidence is so unreliable that they do not feel justified in convicting any of the prisoners at the bar of the charge." Thornton and Conway were then discharged, but the other prisoners were retained in custody pending the decision of the Attorney-General as to whether he will prefer another charge against them.

THOMAS O'CONNOR, an elderly man, who, at the Court of Quarter Sessions, was convicted of having indecently assaulted a child of the age of 2 years and 6 months, and was sentenced by Judge Wilkinson to penal servitude for five years, and to receive 20 lashes, underwent the latter punishment at Darlinghurst Gaol yesterday. The castigation was administered in the presence of the governor of the gaol, Dr. O'Connor, and officials. The offender was a fleshy, and not in any respect a muscular man. His cries indicated that he felt the flogging keenly, but it was not considered that he received more strokes than he could bear.

ABOUT 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon a carter named Henry Bowman met with an accident in King-street. He was driving two horses with a trolly attached, and was sitting upon the top of a brandy keg which slipped and caused him to fall off on to the road, and the keg fell on the top of him. The man appeared to have been seriously injured by the fall, and was taken to the hospital, where it was found that he had received an injury to the spine.

ABOUT half-past 12 o'clock yesterday a man named Hugh Flannigan, residing at 35, Union-street, Pyrmont, and employed by Messrs. Wm. Howard Smith and Sons, was engaged in taking a bolt out of an iron-cutting machine, when his hand got caught between some cogs. His arm was severely injured, and he was conveyed to the hospital, where his wounds were dressed.

YESTERDAY, a lad, aged about 15 years, named Blow, residing at Botany, was brought to the Prince Alfred Hospital. He had been driving a wood cart, and the horse, which was restive, had bolted, when the lad was thrown out and run over. No evidences of fracture could be discerned, but the lad was suffering from internal injuries, and last night his condition was critical.

A MAN named Gordon, who has for some time been an inmate of the Gladesville Lunatic Asylum, escaped from that institution about half-past 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The man is about 35 years of age, is of medium height, stout build, with full black beard, turning grey; he has on white moleskin trousers, with grey tweed coat and vest. The police are anxious to obtain any information which may lead to his capture.

ABOUT half-past 10 o'clock yesterday morning a woman named Hannah Ready, about 28 years of age, and servant at the United States Hotel, Druitt and Sussex streets, jumped off the Market wharf into the water at Darling Harbour. Fortunately, however, her intention was frustrated by a man named L. Corsteverson, of 47, Princes-street, who jumped into the water and rescued her, and, with the assistance of two other men whose names were unknown, conveyed her on shore. The woman was afterwards taken home by her brother, and a warrant was obtained for her arrest upon a charge of lunacy, it being painfully evident that she was not capable of taking care of herself.

ABOUT half-past 9 o'clock on Sunday evening Constable Bryce, of the St. Leonards police, found a young woman in Alfred-street, St. Leonards, whose behaviour was strongly indicative of insanity. Upon being questioned by the constable, she refused to give her name or address, and he then felt justified in removing her to the Sydney Infirmary. Upon the way there she became unconscious, and continued in that state for some time. Yesterday afternoon it was ascertained that her name was Alice Baxter, that she was 20 years of age, and that she resided at North Shore with her parents. The latter visited her at the hospital, and her father stated that the girl, who was a recent arrival in the colony, had been an inmate of the Manchester Lunatic Asylum, where she was kept under restraint for a short time.

IT is announced that this evening Madame A. M. Massey will deliver a lecture in aid of the "Home of Hope for the friendless and fallen." The subject is "Man, or individual responsibility," and the place chosen for the lecture is the Temperance Hall.

THE following is the report of Sydney Hospital for the week ended 8th March, 1884:—Admitted, 48 males, 13 females; total, 61. Discharged, 43 males, 20 females; total, 63. Died, 3 males, 2 females; total, 5. Remaining, 166 males, 61 females; total, 227.

CAIRO, MARCH 8.

Intelligence from Suakim states that Osman Digna has paid no heed to the peremptory summons of Major-General Graham to disperse his troops and cause them to lay down their arms.

It is rumoured that in consequence of the successes of the British arms the followers of Osman are deserting him.

The 10th Hussars are reconnoitering in the neighbourhood of the recent engagement, but Major-General Graham has received orders from the British Government not to advance in the direction of Tokar unless certain of finding Osman Digna and his insurgent army.

Several influential Arab Sheikhs have arrived at Suakim, and tendered submission to the British authorities.

LATER.

Osman Digna still continues to maintain a defiant attitude, and definitely refuses to surrender to Major-General Graham, being determined to fight.

The British force will advance from Suakim on Tuesday, and an engagement may be expected when the insurgents are met with.

Gordon Pasha, Governor of the Soudan, has telegraphed to the Government, stating that he will be unable to secure the relief of the garrison at Khartoum, which place is threatened by the insurgents, without the aid of a British force.

DEATH from THIRST in the NORTHERN TERRITORY.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, MONDAY.

The repairing party which was recently despatched to ascertain the cause of the interruption on the overland line to Port Darwin reports having found the body of a man 120 miles north of the Peake station at midday on Saturday. The body was lying directly under the line, and a horse was lying dead alongside, and the fact that the line was severed at this particular spot points to the conclusion that the unfortunate traveller, in utter despair, had deliberately cut the line in order to procure assistance. The remains of both man and beast were considerably decomposed. the face of the man being so eaten away by ants that it was impossible to gain the slightest clue of recognition. There was no water supply within 20 miles of the place. No trace whatever of the traveller's idenity is yet to hand. The repairing party, having repaired the line at 1.30 p.m. on Saturday, proceeded immediately to Macumba for water.

The width to be obtained at the bottom will be 120 feet with a depth of 20 feet. At the Melbourne General Sessions to-day the appeal of Riordon v. Pedley was decided. RECIDIVISTES in the WESTERN PACIFIC.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

In reference to the report that the Agent-General had been to France to press the colonial views against French transportation upon the French Premier or Minister of Foreign Affairs, Mr. Service states that a proposal of that kind was rejected at the Sydney convention, and he thinks it very unlikely that Mr. Murray Smith has taken it upon himself to assume any responsibility in that direction. With regard to the promise of M. Ferry, mentioned in the cablegrams from Europe, he thinks that the news shows that the Imperial Government have been moving more actively in the matter than some supposed. Still there ought to be something more substantial than this conditional promise. It should be clearly expressed in the bill that recidivistes would not be sent to the Western Pacific.

ADELAIDE, MONDAY.

The Paris correspondent of the Register, writing under date February 1st, says that the Senatorial Commission, which has the Recidivistes Bill in hand, has held several important meetings, and has now almost terminated its labours. The bill proposes to deal with 75,000 habitual offenders and professional criminals who infest France, particularly Paris. If the bill passes, as no doubt it will, the Government will have power to send recidivistes to New Caledonia and Guiana. The bill as voted by the Chamber proposed the Marquesas Group and the Island of Phin-quoc as places for the transportation of convicts, but in an interview with the commission the day before yesterday, M. Favre, Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, said the Government could not accept the two last-mentioned places, as they were unfit for penal settlements. The Government proposes to send to New Caledonia convicts who have a trade, and who would be employed by the colonists. They would be subjected to not very stringent supervision. M. Favre thinks their numbers do not exceed one-fifth of the total transported to Guiana. Convicts sent require to be closely watched, either on account of their antecedents or of their ignorance of a trade. The Government estimates the number proposed to be transported during the first year at 5000, in the second year 4000, and in the third year 3000. The expense of transporting and maintenance during the first year will be 9,000,000 francs, but 5,000,000 francs would be saved by their absence from French prisons.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE AT ADELAIDE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, MONDAY.

A serious fire broke out at half-past 1 o'clock this morning at Chance's jam and sauce factory, at Unley, causing much destruction of property.

The fire started, so far as can be ascertained, in the centre of the front part of the building. The verandah of the house (occupied by a junior member of the firm) was early menaced, but the arrival of No. 1 Fire Reels, supplemented by the Norwood Fire Brigade, shortly after put the residence out of danger. One of Simpson's fire-proof safes was rescued at 8 o'clock this morning, containing the books of the firm. The covers were charred, but the contents were legible. There was a heavy stock of jam and sauce in various stages of manufacture, which was insured in the Liverpool and London and Globe Company for £9850. Three weeks ago it was insured for £13,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

SERIOUS BUGGY ACCIDENT NEAR NEWCASTLE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWCASTLE, MONDAY.

Yesterday evening Mr. and Mrs Jones, music and dancing teachers, of Newcastle, with Mr Arthur Read and his little daughter May, were returning from Lake Macquarie to Newcastle in a buggy, when the vehicle capsized, near Charlestown, into a deep gully. Mr. Jones and Mr. Read were thrown 20 feet and severely injured, and are now under medical treatment. Mr. Reid's daughter escaped with Mrs. Jones, that lady having wrapped her in a carriage rug and thrown her out, and jumping out herself before the buggy went over the precipice. The horse was frightened at a large snake which was lying across the road. The buggy caught on a stump in its descent about 40 feet below, and was smashed to pieces. The horse managed to get clear, the traces having been cut while the animal was plunging.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT BOURKE.

BOURKE, MONDAY.

The community here has just received another shock, caused by the death of Mr. M. P. Fitzgerald, through his horse falling and throwing the rider on his head. Mr. Fitzgerald was the managing partner in the firm of M. P. Fitzgerald and Co., the owners of Fort Bourke sheep station, three miles down the river. He was leaving here, after transacting some business, at midday to-day, and while riding down to fulfil an appointment made by telephone at Gibson's wool-scouring works, to be there in about 20 minutes' time, his horse fell, throwing him upon his head, causing fracture of the skull. Dr. Sides was quickly in attendance, but the sufferer remained insensible until death ensued, about one hour after the accident. Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Fitzgerald, as both are well known and respected throughout the district.

ARRIVAL OF THE ENGLISH MAIL, VIA SUEZ, AT ADELAIDE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

GENERAL SUMMARY.

LONDON, FEB. 1.

Mr. Wilfred Powell's expedition, under the patronage of the Royal Geographical Society, for the exploration of New Guinea, leaves England at the beginning of March. It consists of Mr. Powell, with four or five Europeans, including a naturalist and a geologist. About a thousand or eleven hundred miles of route have been mapped out, and the work is likely to occupy over a year. Mr. Powell has chartered a small screw steamer, and will proceed up the Ambernoli River in a steam launch as far as possible. The launch will then return to the steamer. The party will strike in a south-westerly direction across the high central mountain range, and will afterwards reach the east coast and meet the steamer in Astrolabe Bay. After refitting, the party will again strike westward across the south-east corner of the island to Port Moresby. Mr. Powell will avoid the Fly River or any portion already visited by Europeans.

Sir Henry Parkes, upon being interviewed by a newspaper reporter, expressed himself strongly favourable to the annexation of New Guinea, and declared that Australia would not be satisfied until New Guinea was made a Crown colony like the Fiji Islands.

By the foundering of the Simla, Dr. Barry, the Bishop of Sydney, lost nearly the whole of his library, consisting of several thousand volumes, together with manuscripts and notes.

Australian wines will form an important feature at the International Health Exhibition at South Kensington.

Alfred Shaw, Arthur Shrewsbury, and James Lillywhite are completing arrangements for a team of English professionals to visit Australia. Five or six leading professionals, including Gunn and Barnes, have engaged themselves. The team leave England the middle of September, and the first match will probably be decided for the beginning of November. The team will also visit New Zealand.

It is estimated that the Mahdi's force now amounts to 87,000 men, well provided with ammunition and Krupp guns. The sum of £100,000 has been placed at General Gordon's disposal.

General Gordon has written to the Mahdi asking him to send his European prisoners to Khartoum, and has telegraphed to Khartoum, "You are men, not women; be not afraid, I am coming." General Gordon's only companion is Colonel Stewart.

Baker Pasha landed at Trinkitat on the 28th ult., with 4000 men, and will advance to the relief of Tokar to-day. He will be opposed by Osman Digna, one of the Mahdi's lieutenants, at the head of a large force. The enemy has cut off the water supply to the garrison, and the ammunition is nearly exhausted. Unless relieved at once by Baker the place must fall. The situation at Trinkitat is still more desperate. Food is entirely exhausted, and the garrison will endeavour to cut a way through the besiegers simultaneously with Baker's advance on Tokar.

The recent declaration of the English Government that Suakim is to be abandoned has greatly increased the difficulties of the situation; the Suakim friendly tribes now waver, fearing to be deserted after committing themselves to the Egyptian cause.

The gale of the 26th ult. was the most violent and destructive within living memory in the British Islands.

General Lord Wolseley, in a speech at the annual dinner of the Artists' Volunteer Rifle Corps, said that the short-service system had given most satisfactory results in the army. Thirty-three thousand men enlisted last year, the largest number ever known. The army compared most favourably for quality with that of any foreign Power. England never had an army more worthy of her reputation.

THE SOUDAN DISASTER.

SUAKIM, FEB. 6, 9 a.m.

The following details respecting the disaster in the Soudan will complete the accounts already to hand:—Baker Pasha's force, except the men who were left to garrison Suakim, removed from there to Trinkitat on the 1st instant, entrenchments being at once made at the landing-place for the protection of stores. On the 2nd instant a fort was constructed about four miles from Trinkitat to protect the guns whilst crossing the morasses lying between the harbour and mainland. This fort was occupied by a small force of infantry the same night, which the enemy made no attempt to attack although they came in sight. On the 3rd instant the remainder of the force came on with guns and transports. During the day the scouts brought in the news of the enemy's position, and the men were rested after their passage through the morass, which had been very difficult, in consequence of the mud and water. The night passed quietly, the morning breaking with heavy clouds and rain. The reveille was sounded at 4 a.m., and all was ready for a start at about 6 o'clock, when a force went forward in the following formation:—Two Egyptian regiments in quarter distance columns, with sufficient room between them for the guns and Gatlings. Behind the Egyptians were the negroes and the Massowah battalion of Soudanese. After these came the Turkish infantry and some more negroes, the Turkish cavalry being at the rear of the transport. Skirmishers were thrown out in front of the Egyptian cavalry. After having marched over six miles in the direction of Tokar, the firing of the skirmishers announced the presence of the enemy. A halt was immediately called, and the scouts stated that the enemy was concealed among some clumps of bushes in advance of the left front. A few rounds were fired from the Krupp guns, but as the enemy remained silent the march was again sounded. This movement had occurred twice, when the enemy was seen for the first time attempting to turn the right flank of the Egyptians. Baker Pasha at once ordered the Turkish cavalry to charge them with carbines, but whilst the operation was being carried out an attack was made on the left front, to repel which Sartorius Pasha received orders to form the infantry into a square, the camels, &c., to be placed in the centre. Two companies of the Alexandria battalion then refused to obey orders, but the square was finally formed, the men firing wildly into the air. The enemy quickly advanced and attacked the Egyptians, who turned their backs, submitting to be killed rather than resist their foes, who closed in on the square, where everyone was wedged in with the camels and horses. As the men were being cut down the cavalry were seen in full retreat, and the square rapidly broke up. Sartorius Pasha tried to rally his men, threatening them and even firing upon them, but all efforts proved useless, for they would insist on running away. The guns were now surrounded, and the Turkish infantry and the European police were alike annihilated. Morice was last seen waving on the men, with a revolver in his hand; Leslie, with a drawn sword, was doing the same; Forestier Walker returned wounded to the rear, where for nearly a quarter of an hour he assisted in protecting the retreating Egyptians by firing his revolver on the pursuing enemy, who were killing the fugitives like flies. Many gallant actions were observed during the short and sharp struggle; but the Egyptians would not even turn to make an attempt to save their own lives, but lay down and screamed until they were silenced for ever by thrusts from the rebel's swords or spears. The enemy continued the pursuit as far as the morass and the fort; but even there the Egyptians could not be rallied, for they raced down to the sea, nearly swamping the boats in their eagerness to reach the ships. Sartorius Pasha went on in advance to man the lines at Trinkitat, in order to protect the embarkation. The men threw away their rifles, &c., and came in unarmed, the cavalry even throwing away their saddles, turning their horses loose, and walking in, so as not to incur the risk of being sent out again. All the Egyptian officers made haste to get off to the ships, and left the European officers to carry out the embarkation alone. All the guns, camels, mules, and ammunition were lost. Baker Pasha behaved in a splendid manner, and gave many proofs of that brilliant courage for which he is renowned: but everything was spoiled by the absolute want of the fighting instinct in the Egyptian fellah. A few Abyssinians fought most bravely, but, unfortunately, many of the negroes caught the infection from the fellaheen, and aided in making the whole affair a disgraceful rout.

This disaster is simply one more sad confirmation of the hopelessness of ever converting the peacefully-inclined Egyptian peasant into a soldier. Colonel Carter had been utterly deceived as to the character of the Egyptian men, who were not merely untrained, but absolutely unwilling to fight. They were sent down to Suakim against their will, some being adherents of Arabi. A number were even sent in chains. The runaways were shipped back to Suakim, which is protected virtually by Admiral Hewitt's ships. No hope remains of relieving Sinkat and Tokar, which each contain a garrison of 5000 men, with their wives and children; all will probably be massacred. Attempts were made to negotiate with the rebels for evacuation, but they were refused, and it is now feared that these tidings will imperil all troops and the Europeans in the Soudan. Hostile tribes have appeared in the country between Khartoum and Berber, which has been hitherto free from rebels. General Gordon at the time of the disaster was in the middle of the Korosko desert. He takes with him Lieutenant-Colonel Stewart, and has been appointed Governor-General of the Soudan. Everything confessedly now depends on his single life: the Egyptian Government is absolutely powerless. General Gordon goes without even a military escort. At Cairo there are 6000 British troops, but it is considered in military circles that the only way to relieve Khartoum, Senaar, Gondokoro, &c., is by way of Massowah, and with the assistance of Indian troops, it is doubtful whether these now would not be too late. The feeling of the Egyptian native chiefs is very hostile to England.

In the English speaking community the home Government is severely censured, as for the last two months these disasters have been predicted.

SUICIDE of a BANK MANAGER at BOURKE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BOURKE, MONDAY.

A most shocking affair has occurred here. James W. Martyr, late manager of the Bank of New South Wales, shot himself dead. It appears that the head office had sent an officer to relieve Martyr, and the officer presented himself at the bank announcing that fact for the first time to Martyr on Thursday. On Friday morning Martyr went to the bank for a few minutes, saying that he wanted to do a few hours' work. The new manager gave him the keys and went to breakfast, and on his return found that Martyr had gone. On inquiry he found that Martyr had said that he was going up to West Bourke for a ride. Several persons went after him, finding that he had not returned, fearing that an accident had happened to him; but no intelligence could be got, as he had not been seen at West Bourke. Shortly after a warrant was issued for his arrest on a charge of embezzlement, his defalcations amounting to £640. Martyr was heard of at several places along the road to Barringun, and the police there were communicated with, Sergeant Webb left here in pursuit. Martyr reached Belalie station, 12 miles from Barringun and 90 miles from here, on Sunday. Upon Constable Ireland, from Barringun, arriving at Belalie, Martyr, who was personally unknown to the constable, bade him "Good day," went to his water-bag and had a drink. He then went deliberately into the bedroom adjoining, placed a revolver (which he had brought from Bourke) to his right temple, and blew his brains out, the bullet going through his head to the skin on the left side, where it lodged. The room was completely drenched with blood, and death was instantaneous. One hundred and fifty sovereigns were found on the body. The coroner left here to hold the inquest, in the absence of any magistrates there. Out of the amount of his deficiency £400 is said to have been lost personally. Some private social affairs outside of the bank are said to have preyed heavily upon his mind lately; and on the morning of his departure he received a private letter from Sydney, which was found torn up on the road. Martyr has been in the employment of the bank here just seven years. He was only 26 years of age and he was a very general favourite in all circles. Much sympathy has been expressed on behalf of his aged mother, an old resident of Goulburn, to whom he was much attached. Martyr's salary here was only £300 a year, a remuneration most insignificant for the responsibilities attaching to the office of manager in an expensive town like Bourke. Very great feeling has been expressed here on the subject of the small salaries which bank managers receive, the same being utterly inadequate to the requirements of the position.

THE OURNIE GOLDFIELD RESERVE, UPPER MURRAY.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ALBURY, MONDAY.

A public meeting was held here this evening, the Mayor presiding, to consider what steps should be taken to cause the Ournie goldfield reserve on the Upper Murray to be thrown open for selection. The chairman explained that the meeting was called on the requisition of a number of ratepayers, who considered that the progress of the district was retarded by this reserve being locked up from settlement. Mr. Crisp said that he had traversed the land comprised in the Ournie reserve and found a considerable portion of the country highly fit for settlement, and which would, no doubt, be settled upon if the land were made available for conditional purchase. If the reserve were thrown open it could not fail to benefit the district. He would move,—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, the Ournie goldfield reserve and the Ournie goldfield extended reserve should be thrown open to conditional purchase under the 14th section of the Land Act, as there is not, never has been, nor is there likely to be, any gold-mining of importance on the area, and the land is urgently required for the purposes of bona-fide settlement." Mr. Plunkett seconded the motion. Mr. G. Adams, in supporting the motion, said that the reserve contained an area of nearly 35,000 acres, a considerable proportion of which was so good that to his knowledge a number of persons had been prepared to select, when an intimation recently appeared in the Gazette to the effect that the reserve would be cancelled. The speaker also pointed out that there were now no other Crown lands open for settlement in that locality, and that no harm could result to the mining industry, as it was only proposed to permit selection under the 14th section, which sufficiently conserved the interests of the miners. The motion was supported by Messrs. J. E. P. H. Coll and Walder, and carried unanimously. Mr. Plunkett moved,—"That copies of the foregoing resolution be forwarded to the members for Albury and the Hume, with a request that they will immediately bring the matter under the notice of the Minister for Mines." Mr. Crisp seconded the resolution, which was also carried.

COOTAMUNDRA, MONDAY.

Mr. Southee's hay and corn store was burnt down early this morning. Fortunately no wind was blowing at the time, or the entire block from Taylor's offices to Gregory's public-house would have gone. The fire is supposed to have originated by some tramp sleeping in the straw and smoking. The damage is estimated at £2000.

WAGGA WAGGA, MONDAY.

On Saturday afternoon the clothes of a man were found on the river bank. A search was made in the immediate neighbourhood, and the body was found close in shore. At the inquest held it was ascertained that the name of deceased was Frank Mason, a recent arrival in Wagga Wagga, who had camped on a reserve near the church. The jury returned a verdict of found drowned. Deceased was stated to have been a native of Carlton, Victoria, and was known by the soubriquet of the "Barrister." He had come from Victoria with some other men looking for work.

A little boy, a son of Mr. Ferguson, proprietor of the refreshment-rooms at Wagga station, met with a serious accident by the explosion of a kerosene lamp he was playing with. He lies in a critical condition. His parents were also injured while extinguishing the fire.

Several sudden deaths have taken place in the district lately. Two occurred yesterday.

GUNDAGAI, MONDAY.

At the police court to-day, Mrs. Reardon was fined £30 for sly grog selling, at the Five-mile, on the new railway line. A man named Campbell was implicated, as the evidence showed that he purchased the liquor to supply the shanty. This case arose out of the evidence given at the inquest on the death of M'Lennan. The police are determined to root out the shanty curse.

FORBES, MONDAY.

Captain Thomas H. Pearson, at one time of the Bengal Staff Corps, and who has lately been engaged drilling the local volunteers, died suddenly on Saturday night at Low's Hotel, where he had been residing for some time. Deceased was buried yesterday, the procession being headed by a brass band playing the "Dead March." A body of volunteers marched ahead of the hearse, which was followed by a large concourse of people in vehicles. The body was interred in the Church of England portion of the cemetery, Archdeacon Dunstan reading the funeral service of that church.

It does not appear to have been general, as a passenger by the Wentworth coach states that no rain had fallen four miles from here. SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

AUSTRALIAN ELEVEN v. VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

On the players meeting this morning on the M. C. C. ground it was decided that the match between the Australian Eleven and Fifteen of Victoria should be abandoned. The state of the ground through the heavy rain was such that play would have been impossible, besides which there were no spectators in attendance.

The Australian Eleven were entertained on Saturday evening by the committee of the Melbourne Cricket Club in the grand pavilion. Murdoch, in replying to the toast of the health of the team, said that they intended to strain every nerve to achieve the victory in the old country, and if beaten there would not be a more miserable 13 fellows.

The members of the Australian team held a meeting to-day to consider the advisability of taking a fourteenth player, Spofforth having now decided to join. Bruce has again been asked, but refuses. It is probable that either Marr of Sydney, or W. Giffen or Jarvis of Adelaide, will be chosen.

THE LATE V. R. C. MEETING.

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

From what has transpired respecting the Champion, since the race, there is no doubt that Martini-Henry was "off," and hence his eagerness to part company with the field after the first round had been completed. The hard struggle between Hales and the colt all along the back stretch completely wore out both horse and rider, and his chance was lost before he reached the far turn. Martini-Henry was greatly distressed after the race, and was a long while recovering from the effect of his exertions. There was evidently no suspicion in the stable that the colt was going off, for his owner is said to have offered £5000 to £2500 on him for the Champion Stakes the night before the race.

The settling on the last two days of the V. R. C. Autumn Meeting was commenced to-day, when a large amount of money changed hands. The victory of Le Grand, who was not even mentioned in the betting, was a great help to the ring, who have lost heavily on almost every other event of the meeting. All the fielders were ready to meet their engagements to-day.

For Reginald 650 guineas were offered; he was passed at 750. Countryman was knocked down to Mr. Weekes for 130 guineas, Bohemian for 100 guineas to Mr. Weekes, and Caractacus to Mr. Davis for 100 guineas.

CLARENCE RIVER JOCKEY CLUB.

GRAFTON, MONDAY.

The Clarence River Jockey Club have advertised a programme of two days racing on the 9th and 10th of July. The added money altogether amounts to £680, which includes four handicaps of £200, £150, and £30. The distances are the same as those of the previous year.

THE TURF.

To-day will be a busy one for racing men, for at 4 p.m. the general entry will close for the Hawkesbury Autumn Meeting with the secretary, Mr. C. S. Guest, and the secretary of the A. J. C. The weights for the Sydney Cup and the Hawkesbury Autumn Handicap will also be declared. In addition to those important items attention will have to be paid to the general entries for the Wollongong and Orange meetings.

INTERCOLONIAL EIGHT-OAR RACE.

The steam launch Pacific, hired by the New South Wales Rowing Association, left Circular Quay on Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. to accompany the New South Wales representatives in their row over the course. The boat carried the coach (Mr. Oatley) and several members of the association and their friends. The crew started from the Sydney branch and rowed up to Ryde, turned, and came back to One Man's Wharf. The general opinion of those on board the launch was that the row was a most creditable one. The crew seem very evenly weighted, about 11st. 2lb., have plenty of power, and get considerable pace out of their boat. No. 2 is rather stiff, and No. 5 hardly seems to get far enough forward at his work, and relies too much on his arms. Probably when the crew are together a little longer these slight defects will not be noticeable, and if Mr. Oatley gets his crew fit and well we think New South Wales will be very hard to beat. Next Saturday we understand the association has engaged the same launch to leave the Circular Quay at 3 p.m., and we hope to see some club send an eight up to give our representatives a spin. The crew will probably leave Sydney about Thursday week next, the builder of their boat (Mr. Greenland, of Melbourne), having promised to have her ready by the 20th instant.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

The Victorian rowing crew, following the example set by the New South Wales men in connection with the intercolonial contest, gave a public exhibition of their powers on Saturday. Several eights are in training for the regatta, and had spurts with the intercolonial crew. The Victorian intercolonial crew have already produced a very favourable impression.

Each box contains one month's treatment. 5s a box, or 6 boxes for 25s. Sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of price. We guarantee six boxes to cure any case. Guarantees issued by all chemists and druggists in Australia.

PEPPER'S QUININE AND IRON TONIC possesses all the powers of these valuable tonics in banishing diseases and symptoms traceable to weakness. It rouses and develops the nervous energies, causing increased action of all the nerve centres, enriches the blood, promotes appetite, dispels languor and depression.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—An External Means of CURING SKIN DISEASES. There is scarcely any eruption but will yield to "Sulpholine," and commence to take away in a few days. Ordinary pimples, redness, blotches, scurf, roughness, vanish as if by magic, while old, enduring skin disorders that have plagued the sufferers for years, however deeply rooted they may be, "Sulpholine" will successfully attack them. It destroys the animalcule which cause these unsightly, irritable, painful affections, and always produces a clear, healthy condition of the skin. The symptoms of liver derangement—headache, torpidity, costiveness, flatulence, heartburn, sense of over-repletion, shoulder pains, repugnance to food, general discomfort and depression—are quickly dispelled by Taraxacum and Podophyllin. TO FARMERS, DAIRYMEN, SPECULATORS, and Others.

CHOICE DAIRY and AGRICULTURAL ESTATE.

WATKIN and WATKIN, 281, Pitt-street, have been instructed to offer for Private SALE one of the most desirable Properties in the county of Cumberland, within 20 miles of the metropolis, and about 2 miles from Liverpool Railway Station, to which there are several trains daily, including a mid-day train, an important item to dairymen. The area is about 500 acres, of which about 150 have been cleared, stumped, and made fit for the plough, including flats fit to grow anything, the remainder being well timbered, the timber itself being worth a large sum. There is a permanent water supply from a creek, which is never dry; and the fences are all nearly new and in thorough repair. The improvements are considerable, including a newly-built and comfortable dwelling-house of four rooms with detached kitchen, galvanised iron tank, large barn, barned, and one 2-stall and one 3-stall stable. Also the usual outhouses, such as man's room, cart and buggy shed, tool-house, fowlhouse, &c.

The Auctioneers would direct special attention to the above property, as it is seldom that such a desirable block comes into the market. And setting aside the value of the estate for dairy or agricultural purposes, it is certainly only a question of a few years, when (so marvellous is the growth of the suburbs of Sydney) the property can be subdivided and sold in small suburban homesteads of from one to five acres in extent, when an immense advance will be obtained upon the present money value.

A Public school adjoins the Estate on one boundary.

The Title is Torrens' Act. Terms of Sale are liberal, particulars of which, and any other information, with cards to view, can be obtained upon application to the auctioneers.

WATKIN and WATKIN, 281, Pitt-street.

The Farm Implements, Stock, &c., can be taken at a valuation.

MOUNTAIN AIR, ONLY 40 MINUTES from SYDNEY, 20 MINUTES by RAILWAY, and 20 MINUTES' DRIVE.

For POSITIVE SALE, one of the most complete suburban COTTAGE-BUILT FAMILY RESIDENCES to be met with; grand situation on the highest land between SYDNEY and BLUE MOUNTAINS.

The HOUSE is in first-class order, and contains 9 rooms, kitchen, scullery, pantry, bathroom, &c., fine wide front verandah 80 feet long, conservatory, and back verandah 9 feet wide; good water supply, 25,000 gallons in underground tanks, besides other tanks, coachhouse, 3-stall stable, man's room, stores, sheds, poultry sheds, &c.

The GROUNDS comprise 12 acres, and have TWO FRONTAGES of 1584 feet to chain wide roads. They are tastefully laid out in flower beds, with choice plants, shrubs and trees, croquet ground, lawn, &c., orchard with about 150 choice young trees, fine vinery, and vegetable garden, &c.

KING and COMPANY have received instructions from the owners, Messrs. MacGregor and Co., to sell by public auction, at Menzies' Hotel, Melbourne, on TUESDAY, the 29th April, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, to the highest bidder, without reserve, in order to close the partnership,

The Durham Downs Station, in the South Gregory District of Queensland, consisting of the following blocks of country, viz.:—

Warlaby, Durham Downs, Callipie, Dunoon, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Greenock, Duncan, Larra, Turtulla, Callipie South, Finis, Amen, Largs, Bowling, Tarragowna, Ballock, Loch, Glenlyon, Glengyle, Glenfall, Benecastle, Bendoran, Benleigh, Bendhen, Benshallum, Scone, Victoria, Glencairn, Douglass, Marmion, Moreland, Coburg, Perth, Key, Crieff, Comrie, Ivanhoe, Rose, Cairngorm, altogether containing an area of 2456 square miles of excellent grazing country taken up originally by Messrs. MacGregor and Co.

In addition to which will be sold with the above their right and interest in two adjoining blocks, which have been applied for, viz.:—Tabooroa and Tooratobie.

This large extent of fine sheep country is perhaps the best naturally watered in Western Queensland, having a frontage of 43 miles to the west side of Cooper's Creek, 40 miles to the east side, and 17 miles frontage to the east side of the Nacoowiah Billabong, which at this part is quite equal to Cooper's Creek, 12 miles to each side of Tooratobie Creek, besides the Wamanooka, Warroona, Parkamiona, Jackson's and Windula Creeks, and various other creeks and waterholes in the back country.

The property is situated on that part of Cooper's Creek where the country subject to floods is confined to the narrowest limits, and between 250 and 300 miles of the present South Australian railway station, "The Gums," and within 70 miles of Innamincka, and 180 miles of Birdsville, on the South Australian boundary, to one of which places the Adelaide Government are bound to extend their rails within a very short period.

The country is all sound undulating open downs, with extensive plains on Cooper's Creek, all excellent for sheep as well as cattle, for which latter it is noted as producing the fattest and best quality beef, which invariably realises the highest price, and on one occasion a draft of 115 bullocks sold to £17 15s, making the highest average ever obtained for Queensland cattle in the Melbourne market, viz., £14 16s 10d.

Improvements consist of the ordinary necessary improvements for the working of the station, viz.: Huts, good large stockyards at home station, and hut and small yard at out station.

With the station will be sold the well-known herd of cattle consisting of—
14,161 head (more or less), all well bred, quiet, and carefully managed on their run
2,500 sheep, mixed ages and sexes
819 horses, a large number of which are broken in—the whole being of a superior description.

Also,—
All the station plant, stores, furniture, all goods and chattels, on the station belonging to Messrs. MacGregor and Co.
